NEW YORKERS GET TASTE OF AIR 'ATTACK'

Citizens Tumble From Bed as Unidentified Plane Sets Sirens Screaming.

DOUSE LIGHTS QUICKLY

Newark Raid Warden Dies Racing For His Post; Policeman Hurt.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—The scream of air raid sirens tumbled millions of residents of the greater New York area from bed early today and gave them a brief taste of the difference between a real alarm and a test.

It was no practice blackout or alert that sent wardens scurrying to their posts, doused lights and halted traffic in New York City and surrounding localities, but an unidentified plane's approach to the coast.

The public relations section of the eastern defense command and first army said the alarm began at 2:23 a. m. (EWT) and ended nine minutes later when the plane was identified as friendly.

Meanwhile, however, giant searchlights criss-crossed the skies with a brilliance approximating daylight, thousands of air raid wardens hastened to their duties and the metropolitan area seethed with the excitement of an emergency that had not been planned.

Garden City and Riverhead on Long Island, White Plains in Westchester county and Newark, Paterson and New Brunswick in New Jersey sounded alarms as well as all five boroughs of New York City.

In Newark, Air Raid Warden Aaron Polakow, 57, died of a heart attack as he raced from his home to his post. In the Bronx, Patrolman Edward Gallagher, 36, received a possible skull fracture when he tripped and fell while en route to his station house although off duty.

Only two arrests of persons for refusing to move on were reported in New York City and the only other evidence that everyone was not obeying the general raid instructions came when thousands kept police and newspaper office

Eighth Ohio Vets, Fewer and Greyer, Re-affirm Pledges

By FRED T. NORRIS

Fewer in number, greyer of hair, slower of step—but no less staunch of heart than when they answered a call to arms in 1898—veterans of the Eighth Ohio infantry in the War with Spain in reunion session here yesterday reaffirmed their allegiance to their flag and country.

More than 200 veterans are registered for their annual rally which closes today with a dinner in the First Methodist church, an additional 300 relatives and friends participating.

"Our greatest task today is to keep high the morale of those who have sons or daughters in the service," declared State Senator David L. Liggett, Bell Center, who was the principal speaker at last night's campfire session in the Memorial building auditorium. Liggett, Ohio department commander of the United Spanish War Veterans, cited the advocacy by those veterans 42 years ago for a stronger national defense. "This demand was taken up by veterans

Detective Looks for Data, Picks Up Theft Suspect.

KANSAS CITY—(AP)—Detective Alex Stewart hurried to a downtown pawn shop to get a report on a $20 holdup. A man hurried in right behind him and sought to pawn a diamond ring.

Stewart, becoming suspicious, examined the diamond, then arrested the man. The ring—valued at $700—had been stolen that afternoon from a south side home.

Parade Opens Gala Labor Day Program

Thousands to Be on Hand For All-Day Festivities At City Parks.

Stressing unity of labor in the war program, Mansfield unions, with Civilian Defense, military and scores of other patriotic, fraternal and civic groups participating, today are observing their annual day of frolic in the most auspicious manner in the city's history.

Thousands were to witness the parade of foot units, floats and mobile units which, starting at 10 a. m., will traverse the business area. Armed military units and servicemen on furlough will lend a martial air to the spectacle while cadenced music of ten bands and drum corps will cause heads to lift, steps to be more determined and will attract round after round of cheers.

Today will also be a red letter day in the sale of war savings stamps and bonds. A corps of 50 girls will sell war savings stamp corsages in booths down town and also at North Lake park.

The corsages — hundreds of them were made last week by a corps of workers at Kafer's Flowers, 41 North Mulberry street. Much of the material and work was donated by Kafer.

Michael J. Harris, sub-regional director of the United Steelworkers of America, Philadelphia, will address an audience of thousands at Central park on "Free Labor Will Win." Sherman Dalrymple, Akron, general international president of the United Rubber Workers of America, will proclaim that labor must keep the production lines moving until the Axis hordes are vanquished.

This afternoon children will have their inning at North Lake park by participating in novel athletic and other contests. Men and women, too, will frolic through various contests.

At 4:30 p. m. there will be a ball game between the Mansfield Provident girls team and the Ranger A. C. team of Cleveland. Following this there will be five three-round boxing bouts in the open-air theater.

Dancing will start at 8 p. m. in

STEAL TIRES

Thieves Get Four From Three Autos During Week-End.

Theft of tires and wheels from three cars parked on Mansfield streets Saturday night was reported to police yesterday.

Thieves took the two right wheels and tires from the auto of Joseph Medek, 308 Auburn street, which was parked from 8:30 p. m. to midnight Saturday near Orange street and Central avenue, while Medek was visiting the Sons of Herman hall. In his report to police Medek fixed his loss at $40.

The right front wheel and tire were stolen from the auto of Alexander G. Yanules, Akron, while it was parked on North Walnut street Saturday night. Loss was fixed at $30.

Ray Jewell, 365 Ninth avenue, told police the left front wheel and tire were removed from his car while it was parked on North Walnut street Saturday night from 7:30 o'clock till 11 o'clock. Loss was put at $25.

SURVIVORS IN LAKE PORT

CONNEAUT —(AP)— Tired and worn, 20 survivors of the Sunken steel carrier Steelvender arrived here yesterday with the remark they were "lucky to be alive." The ship sank in Lake Superior early Thursday.

Labor Day Has a Real Meaning Today

Labor Day has a deeper meaning this year as America fights for life against the Axis powers in Europe and the treacherous Japanese in the Orient. War plants are humming, turning out the guns, planes, tanks and bullets to help fight the enemy. Labor has gone all-out for the war effort. And John Q. Citizen, the average worker, does his bit at home while his son, relative or neighbor mans the fighting line.

NATION HEARS FDR PLAN TODAY

President To Discuss Wage, Price, Tax Program on Air at 9:30 P. M.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — President Roosevelt will outline to congress and the nation today his proposals for controlling a wartime situation created by fat pay envelopes and scanty store stocks.

Wages and prices, taxes and rationing were expected to be dealt with in the president's message to a country that gave up its usual Labor day holiday to keep the war plants rolling.

Congress, assembling at noon (Eastern War Time), will hear Mr. Roosevelt's program read by clerks in both houses. Tonight, at 9:30, the president will go on the air in a "fireside chat" that will be broadcast by all networks and short-waved abroad.

Persons familiar with the program, which has been under preparation for weeks, said it called for the appointment of an economic administrator to keep wages, salaries and farm

Now, Julia, Cut the Monkey Business

CLEVELAND —(AP)— Julia almost broke a date with Cleveland's Labor day crowds.

She's been playing up to sidewalk idlers most of her 14 years, picking up loose change with her antics. She seldom has missed a public celebration, but yesterday she suddenly smashed four jars of tomatoes, crawled out a window of the cellar where she lives and scampered up on a house top. A couple neighbor boys finally corraled her.

So Julia — a monkey — was dressed in her best holiday clothes and went out among 'em again today while her master, 77-year-old Carmen Armenti, played the hurdy-gurdy for her performance.

Short Session Looming For Grand Jury Meeting Tomorrow

When the Richland county grand jurors reconvene tomorrow morning to complete their work in the summer court term, they will have a one-day session in prospect. Their last session lasted more than three days.

Acting Prosecutor John C. O'Donnell will submit 17 cases to the jury and he expects to complete them by Tuesday night. Subpoenas have been issued for about 35 witnesses.

The majority of the cases involve charges of breaking and entering, non-support, and issuing checks with insufficient funds and require little time for presentation to the jury, it was pointed out.

The jurors will investigate a statutory charge against Russell Ellsworth, 22, Mansfield, accused of attempted criminal assault on a 70-year-old woman.

Other cases on the docket include breaking and entering charges against Charles E. Barney, Stanley Turner, Wayne Royce Hamlin, and Russell Burke; charges of issuing checks with insufficient funds against Benjamin R. Redden, Robert R. Darling, and Robert O. Reynolds.

The jury will study non-support charges against James F. Sergent and Morgan Stewart. Others whose cases will go before the jury include William J. Williams, accused of carrying concealed weapons; Walter Fannin, forgery; Bryson Nicholson, grand larceny; Paul Dill, James Richens and Robert Burdge, forgery; Helen Zeppito, cutting with intent to wound.

FLIER ESCAPES BURNING PLANE

Tells First-Hand Story of Six-Hour Swim, Rescue From Pacific Island.

By TOM YARBROUGH

ABOARD A U. S. WARSHIP IN THE SOLOMON ISLANDS AREA— (Delayed) —(AP)—Here's what happened to one navy flier the day the navy and marines started knocking the Japanese out of the Solomon islands and how he saved his skin with remarkable courage, physical strength and endurance.

He is Ensign Gordon Firebaugh, 31, of Valparaiso, Ind., who has been flying 11 years and has 3,000 hours of flying to his credit.

Leading a flight of carrier-based fighters against 33 Japanese bombers the afternoon of Aug. 8, he was surprised by a flock of Japanese Zero planes, bailed out of his flaming cockpit, swam for six hours after his life preserver sprang a leak, and lived on lonely islands until a navy plane rescued him 11 days later.

SCHOOL BELLS RING SOON FOR 12,000 PUPILS

Rural Pupils, Those at City's Parochial Schools Resume Classes Tomorrow.

MANY NEW TEACHERS

Mansfield Buildings Start Fall Terms Wednesday; Programs Complete.

School bells in Mansfield and throughout Richland county will call close to 12,000 boys and girls back to classes tomorrow and Wednesday as a new term gets under way.

Most of the schools in the county's rural districts will open Tuesday along with St. Peter's parochial school in Mansfield.

Mansfield public schools and the Country Day school will start Wednesday. Butler and Bellville schools will have brief preliminary sessions today, but classes will not start until Tuesday.

The Union Rural schools in Weller and Franklin townships have more than a week's head start on the other districts. They opened last Monday.

The Plymouth schools will be the last in the county to open. An addition to the high school is nearing completion there and opening of the new term will be delayed until Sept. 21 so the new structure will be ready. Vacation periods during the year will be shortened so the term will not extend too far past the closing date of other county schools next spring.

In many districts in the city and county, old-fashioned bells atop the buildings will signal the start of the 1942-43 term, just as they have for more than a century. At least four elementary buildings in Mansfield — Hedges, Bushnell, West Fifth and Newman — still have big outside bells. A number of the buildings in rural districts still use them.

Lives of the pupils, like those of their parents, have been affected by the war. Air raid drills, started last spring, will be resumed, and at Mansfield Senior high school a course in pre-

NEARLY DONE

3-Story Addition to Nurses' Home Being Completed.

The three-story addition to the nurses' home started in April will be completed within the next three weeks, Dr. A. D. Fonkalsrud, superintendent of Mansfield General hospital, said today.

Built at a cost of $60,000, the new addition will provide more than twice as much space as the nurses' quarters did formerly. It will accommodate 52 nurses as well as provide space for a large demonstration class room, also a library. The latter, that has previously been housed in a basement room, will now be installed on the first floor.

Work on the building is practically completed with the exception of the inside painting, Dr. Konkalsrud said, and it is likely that some kind of formal program will mark the building's completion.

Reds Roll Foe Back, Break Up Strong Attacks

Russian Sailors Join In Battle Around Novorossisk, Black Sea Naval Base, Which Nazis Claim To Have Taken After Hard Fight.

(By Associated Press)

MOSCOW—The Russian defenders of Stalingrad, meeting every blow of the German army massed at the city's approaches, again threw the Germans back to the northwest and broke up two determined attacks to the southwest, the Red army reported today.

But sailors of the Red fleet joined the struggle around the Black sea naval base at Novorossisk, indicating the gravity of the position there. The sailors held a strategic hill against a German storming unit and killed more than 100 German soldiers, the mid-day Russian communique said.

(The German high command announced last night that Novorossisk, an important Russian naval base, had been captured after a hard fight of several days, leaving the Russian Black sea fleet only the inadequate base at Batum.)

German pressure was increasing too on the narrow wedge driven part way across the north Caucasus along the Rostov-Baku railway to the region of Mozdok, only 55 miles from the oil fields of Grozny.

The Russians reported they were fighting an enemy force which succeeded in crossing a water line, presumably the Terek river. One Soviet unit wiped out two companies of German infantry here and displayed great self sacrifice, the communique said.

It was the second time in 12 hours that the Russians reported gains northwest of Stalingrad. Bloody fighting was continuing in that arena as the Germans, apparently heedless of the cost, sought to seize the Volga citadel before the arrival of unfavorable weather.

Five burned out German tanks and 280 German officers and men remained on the field of battle there after the successful Russian attack, the mid-day communique said. In addition

DOUBLE BLOW: RAF and U. S. Bombers Raid France Twice

BULLETIN

LONDON—(AP)—British bombers in strong force smashed last night at Duisburg and elsewhere in Germany's industrial Ruhr valley in raids from which eight aircraft are missing, it was announced today.

(By Associated Press)

LONDON—The RAF smashed at Germany last night for the fifth time in six nights, sweeping across the English channel in the wake of the greatest daylight raids on Nazi-occupied France ever carried out by the United States Army air forces.

While the scale of the night attack was not immediately disclosed, the Berlin radio indicated that it was fairly heavy, acknowledging material damage at several points in western Germany and reporting that six raiders had been shot down.

This assault followed by only a short time the announcement that four squadrons of American Flying Fortresses and fleets of Boston bombers had hammered at military targets in northern France yesterday while 400 Allied fighters swept 50 miles inland in diversionary attacks.

Two of the Flying Fortresses failed to return from the raids —the first of these great four-motored craft to be lost in nine offensive forays into German-occupied Europe. The U. S. army air forces have made a total of 10 sweeps in the European theater with the Flying Fortresses, the tenth being an operation over the North sea in which six German fighters were shot down or damaged in a 20-minute battle Aug. 21.

In yesterday's fighting, the heavily-armed fortresses destroyed

REGRESSION: Rommel Beaten Right Back Where He Started

(By Associated Press)

CARIO—The confidant push which Field Marshal Erwin Rommel launched a week ago with the apparent hope of reaching Cairo within a week has ended with his Axis armies beaten back to their starting point under a series of heavy Allied blows by land and by air.

Behind them the Axis forces left the desert strewn with wrecked tanks and transport vehicles—losses which observers said today had so crippled Rommel's striking power that he would have to pause and reorganize before striking again.

The immediate threat to the Nile valley thus appeared to be dissipated for the moment, though military quarters warned that the decisive battle on which the ultimate fate of Egypt may hinge is still to be fought.

There was no question here, however, that Rommel had thrown his full strength into the offensive in an attempt to crush the British Eighth army which had been augmented on the ground by U. S. Army tank forces.

A captured German told the British that just before the push was launched Rommel himself visited the front, passed out cigarets to his troops and told them confidently: "We'll be in Cairo next week, boys."

Unexpectedly strong opposition, coupled with sharp initial losses, apparently caused the Axis chieftain to abandon his plan before the main body of his army was locked in a showdown battle from which there could be no withdrawal.

Allied bomber crews scoffed at

Mary Ann gasped, ran after Berlin, and on catching up with him said breathlessly: "Oh, Mr. Berlin, the Army REALLY thanks you!"

HOLLYWOOD

—By Robbin Coons

HOLLYWOOD—Time and again hopeful stage people come to Hollywood with fine ideas about combining stage and screen careers. They even write it into their contracts—"time off for a stage play."

Nine times out of ten, they get the time off and don't have the play. Can't find one. Or if they do, it's a quickie—on Broadway and off so fast they might have saved the trip.

Coons

That leaves Katharine Hepburn pretty much in a class by herself. She really does it, and there's no other star who does it so successfully.

It took time, at that. It's only the past three years that K. Hepburn has hit her stride. Before that, victim of more unhappy movies than good ones, she kept on trying for the stage. A lot of people besides K. Hepburn still shudder when they think of "The Lake," her most unfortunate stage venture. Miss H. herself doesn't exactly shudder. Ask her what single factor was most important in her present success, and she'll toss back at you, "My flops."

"There's a pattern in the course of these past three Hepburn years. A year on Broadway in "The Philadelphia Story," then two hit pictures, — the film version of "Story" and "Woman of the Year." Twelve weeks on the road with her new Theater Guild show, "Without Love," then the movie "Keeper of the Flame." That's again with Spencer Tracy. After this, she'll open her play in New York. After that—she'll make a movie of it. You see the pattern? It's one thing at a time.

Here's what she said after success of "The Philadelphia Story" told her she could write her own ticket: "I'll make one picture a year. Between films, I'll do a play. In that way I can give both my undivided attention."

She learned from "The Lake" that it's impossible to open a play in New York without plenty of time for preparation and rehearsal.

"The same is true of picture-making," she said. "If you're going to do a thing, do it well or not at all."

U.S.O. SERVICE CLUB TAKING SHAPE AT Y.M.

Women's Group to Carry Out Operation of Club Which Operates 7 Days a Week.

The women's organization that will be responsible for daily operations at the new U. S. O. Men's Service club now being installed in the Y. M. C. A. is rapidly taking shape under the direction of Mrs. Frank H. Maxwell and will meet sometime this week to map procedure.

The club will operate seven days a week, Mrs. Maxwell said, and a permanent chairman has been named for each day. These chairmen will be known as majors and their task will be to designate captains for each one of the three shifts operating on their particular day.

Mrs. Maxwell, who was recently named head of the women's organization by the Richland county U. S. O. campaign and service club committees, has completed the list of majors. Two of the majors, Mrs. Charles Shafer and Mrs. F. J. Heringhaus, together with Mrs. Maxwell, are the wives of Mansfield physicians now with the armed forces. Mrs. Louis A. Ott has a son, David, overseas.

The majors and the days for which they will be responsible are: Mrs. A. J. Goldsmith, Monday; Mrs. Charles Shafer, Tuesday; Mrs. Henry Stiles, Wednesday; Mrs. L. A. Ott, Thursday; Mrs. A. J. Reynolds, Friday; Mrs. F. J. Heringhaus, Saturday, and Miss Faye Sutherland, Sunday.

One captain for each of the three daily shifts will be named by the majors while the captains in turn will appoint two hostesses. The women will serve from 9 a. m. to 1:30 p. m., from 1:30 p. m. to 6 p. m., and from 6 p. m. until 10 p. m., closing time.

No food outside of free cookies, donated by Mansfield people, will be served at the club, Mrs. Maxwell said, in accordance with a request from national U. S. O. headquarters. Special parties and dances, however, call for an exception to the rule.

Arrangements have been made by the county U. S. O. organization to provide meals at local restaurants for service men in need of food and the same thing is true of lodging. A few cots at the Y. M. C. A. will be available for short rest periods.

The organization will also provide shaving facilities for service men and also the soap and towels used in the showers.

Free stationary and writing desks will be a part of the club room proper.

ISSUES REPORT

AAA Says Richland Farmers Get 16,000 Tons of Lime.

Richland county farmers have obtained approximately 16,000 tons of lime through the county AAA office for the improvement of their land, according to county AAA officials. The figure represents an increase of one-third over last year.

Farmers participating in the crop program are eligible to order lime through the AAA set-up and receive an allowance of $2 a ton for lime necessary to meet their soil-building requirements set by the government. Farmers who use any additional amount must pay for it themselves.

Use of lime is a part of the AAA soil-building program. Price of lime in the county ranges from $1.95 to $2.60 a ton for farm delivery and from $2.35 to $3.10 a ton spread on the land, depending upon the distance the lime must be transported.

PLANS EXAMS FOR FIREMEN

Civil Service Commission to Hold Session; Chief Points to Dangers.

Urgent requests by Fire Chief Charles J. Seeburger for increases in the personnel of what he describes as his "sadly undermanned" department today brought announcement that city officials have asked for certificates from the Civil Service commission.

Commission members said recently that no eligibles remain on their applicant list and that examinations for fire and police posts will be held next Thursday. Seeburger has urged Mayor W. J. Locke to make one or more temporary appointments pending their eventual qualification under Civil Service rules.

"Mansfield's high value or business district is in constant peril because of an undermanned fire department," Seeburger declared today. "At present there are 32 members, with 16 on each shift, to man four stations and six pieces of equipment. Due to sick leaves, annual vacations and operation of the Kelly law providing certain hours off for firemen the stations usually are badly crippled.

"On some days central station, with three pieces of apparatus, is manned by a crew of four. We all dread the thought of a business district fire which easily could get beyond the control of a short force."

Insurance writers some months ago recommended the addition of 12 men to the fire force, Seeburger said, but no action has been taken to expand the department.

Y. W. COMMITTEE TO MAP BUDGET

Request To Be Submitted to Community Fund.

The finance committee of the Y. W. C. A. will set up the organization budget for submission to the Mansfield Community fund at a meeting called for Friday, Sept. 11, by Mrs. R. G. Averill, committee chairman.

The committee will meet at the building at 2:30 p. m. Several other committee sessions are also scheduled next week including two by the Beta Gamma club, business and industrial girls' organizations.

The Beta Gamma program committee will meet Tuesday at 7:30 p. m. to outline three lines of activity. Wednesday at 7:30 p. m. the club cabinet will meet to plan the opening meeting announced for Sept. 16.

HE'LL CARRY IT

Driving Home for Midnight Snack Proves Too Complicated.

PITTSBURGH — (AP) — Johnny Ryan, a night dispatcher for a trucking farm, undoubtedly will carry his lunch from now on or step across the street to a restaurant for his midnight snack.

Ryan borrowed a huge trailer-truck to make the five mile trip home for a couple of his wife's sandwiches. The truck crashed into a safety island. A police emergency crew and two tow trucks worked two hours to extricate Ryan from the wreckage.

CITY'S AUGUST RELIEF COSTS SHOW SLIGHT RISE TO $2,180

Mansfield relief costs for August were $2,180.56, an increase of $166.58 over July, while a decrease from $2,615.95 to $2,485.38, or a drop of $166.58 is noted for Richland county, according to the monthly report issued by J. Vern Finney, county relief director.

During August the city's caseload was decreased by four cases, leaving a balance of 82 cases including 231 persons receiving direct relief during the month. In July 264 persons were afforded direct relief.

In the county two cases were dropped from relief rolls, leaving 80 on the books including 244 receiving direct aid during August.

County expense is reported as follows: Direct relief $1,051.98; medical services $479.60; administrative expenses $526.08; non-administrative expenses $427.72. In Mansfield costs were distributed as follows: Direct relief $1,309.28; medical services $568.29; non-administrative expenses $302.99.

Thirteen persons were certified for WPA work in August and 25 were assigned to projects, six failing to report. There were 36 persons laid off because they obtained private employment or on account of illness. There were 180 employed Aug. 31 and 35 were awaiting assignment.

The WPA housekeeping aid project workers cared for 63 families, including 188 persons, spending 281.5 hours in training and 1447.5 hours in the homes of indigent persons. There were 37 employed in this capacity.

FIND NO CLUES

Police Unable to Locate Pair Of Swindlers.

Police indicated today they virtually have given up their hunt for two colored women and a white man who a few days ago duped a Mansfield colored woman out of $74 through the age-worn "found money" racket. Some weeks ago a Richland county farm woman lost $350 in a similar manner.

Police also said that thus far they have been unable to connect any of a trio of colored men held for an attempted clothing store burglary at Loudonville with the lootings last May of Komito's clothes store and the Brooks Quality shop in which men's suits valued at $7,500 were stolen.

The trio, held in Ashland county jail at Ashland, were arrested by Marshal R. L. Schnittke as they were attempting to force an entrance to the Arnolt store in Loudonville.

CHANGE NURSE TRAINING DATE

Classes to Begin Sept. 16 Instead Of Sept. 9.

Red Cross home nursing classes will begin Wednesday, Sept. 16, instead of Sept. 9, according to a change in time announced today by Mrs. J. B. Simons, home nursing chairman.

Forty persons are enrolled for the first two classes that will be held afternoons and evening in the health room at John Simpson Junior High school where all home nursing classes will be held this season.

Mrs. W. G. Fort will be the instructor of the Wednesday groups meeting at 1:30 p. m. and 7:30 p. m. Other home nursing instructors will teach the classes now being slated for Tuesday and Friday.

Laff-a-Day

"Who cares about the three bears? Tell me a story about the 'Flying Tigers'!"

Police Chief Thomas M. Bell and Service-Safety Director Fred B. Wolff today appealed to persons who have reported bicycles lost or stolen to inspect the dozen or more in storage at the police station. "We have bikes of all types," the officials said, "and our storage space is limited. Owners are urged to call at the station, describe their missing property to the desk clerk or other officer and then view the stored vehicles."

Because he believed an uncle in Lexington had disinherited him, Charles B. Hills, 35, of East Orange, N. J., found himself in the toils of the law today. Hills told FBI agents who arrested him in Newark, N. J., for failing to keep his draft board informed of his whereabouts, that he left Indiana, where he had registered for the draft after learning he had been disinherited. The FBI agents notified him, however, that his Lexington uncle had left him $2,000. Clerks at the Richland county courthouse were unable to trace the will and the news dispatch from East Orange telling of Hills' plight, did not include the name of the uncle.

There will be none, or but few, trips home for lunch by Country Day school pupils this year. The 40 first to fifth graders as well as kindergarten children will be served lunch at the building in order to save transportation and tires. A decision to this effect was reached at a meeting held by the mothers since lunch has always been served at the school to the children who desired it. Arrangements were also made by the mothers to "share-a-ride" and Mrs. Robert Black is to work out transportation arrangements.

William A. Duff, Ashland historian, recalled yesterday that it was just 41 years ago Saturday that the Bill William society of Mansfield held its first outing. The society's second annual picnic at Casino park was a bigger affair, he said, with more than 200 Mansfielders named William and a few from out of the city participating. Duff was poet laureate of the society, contributing verses which were read at each meeting. At the second annual outing Sept. 5, 1902, the "Lean Bills" played the "Fat Bills" a five-inning baseball game at the park.

HITS REBATES

Sen. Byrd Says Tax Refunds Would Be Just 'Bonuses.'

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Characterizing proposed postwar rebates for taxpayers as a form of "bonus payments," Senator Byrd (D., Va.) urged today that the senate finance committee concentrate on revisions of the pending revenue bill which would bring in the maximum amount of immediate and direct taxes.

Byrd told reporters he feared that if provision was made to refund later some of the money collected now, the treasury might be faced with a staggering accumulation of taxpayer credits after the war.

"Most of these credits are going to be piled up by persons and corporations whose income is being increased by war work and I don't believe the country is going to be in favor of that kind of a bonus payment," he added.

U. S. TROOPS ON MANEUVERS IN CALIFORNIA

Use All Types of Modern Arms as General Praises Their Fitness.

(By Associated Press)

WITH U. S. ARMY ON CALIFORNIA TRAINING MANEUVERS—Dusty, deep-tanned desert warriors, manning virtually all the weapons of modern combat, squared off today for the decisive "battle" in the second phase of our army's realistic California desert maneuvers.

That battle promised to be a humdinger. For two days and a night the rival armies—Maj. Gen. Homer C. Brown's Reds and Maj. Gen. Robert C. Richardson, jr.'s Blues — had been setting the stage, and the stage-setting continued last night.

While the Reds were digging in along the range of hills and mountains that runs west and south of Needles, Calif., the Blues were sending an entire regiment of infantry, with full pack and all equipment, right across one of the toughest parts of that range to be in jump-off position against the Red flank at dawn.

The Reds, mostly infantry with artillery and tank destroyer support, were concentrated on the defense of two highway passes. The Blues, with tanks, artillery, infantry, mechanized cavalry and bombardment aviation at their command, also planned to throw in parachute troops in a dawn operation as a diversion from their main thrust.

Among the most interested spectators at the big show was Brig. Gen. Floyd L. Parks, 46-year-old chief of staff of the army ground forces under Lieut. Gen. Lesley J. McNair. On the scene for the past two days, he was full of enthusiasm for this training ground and of admiration for the men who have been training in it.

"I've never seen a better looking bunch of men," he said. "They've been eating dust, losing sleep, getting by on field rations. Yet they're tanned and healthy and full of fight, and for all that this is a wasteland, they actually seem to like it.

"This place has no equal as a proving ground — it's absolutely unique. When you're going into a wrestling match with a tough opponent, you'd better know all the holds—and this is the place where we can learn them."

59 Boys, Girls To Be Presented Reading Awards

Fifty-nine boys and girls of the Treasure Seekers club, summer reading course sponsored by the Mansfield Public Library, will receive certificates for reading at least 10 books and submitting written reports on this number.

Thirteen of this group will also receive their choice of a Newberry book given to club members who have finished their third year as reading course members. The total enrollment for the season stood at 151.

Awards will be presented at a special meeting now being planned by Miss Myra Lorimer, children's librarian, who is also planning a similar program for younger boys and girls belonging to the Shovel-Bearers club. Thirty-seven of the 64 enrolled in the later group completed the course.

Close to 2,000 books were circulated in the two groups during the season, the Treasure Seekers submitting 769 reports. Parents of the Shovel-Bearers signed cards indicating that a total of 1,800 books had been read.

MESSENGER GIRLS DELIVER WIRES AND THEN GRAB OFF NEW JOBS

(By Associated Press)

ST. LOUIS—Girls, are you seeking the road to success?

Then try to get on as a messenger girl—they're grabbing better jobs so fast it's giving their telegraph company employers a nightmare.

Victor Blume, city superintendent for the Postal Telegraph company, and I. I. Simon, in charge of messenger service for the Western Union, view the quick turnover with mingled pride and annoyance.

They're quick to say they like to see a poor working girl get ahead. But they add wistfully, it would be even nicer to be able to keep a nice girl for a few weeks.

"It's a compliment to our judgment in selecting girls for messenger jobs," said Blume.

"But," said Simon, "just about the time we get a girl nicely broken in she tells us she's going to work for that new firm where she delivered a telegram last week."

Only two of 40 girls who started out as Western Union messengers last March still are with the company, one of them no longer as a messenger. Postal has 12 girls on the job, but they aren't the same 12 who went to work last January.

Despite the quick turnover, Blume and Simon still think the girl messenger idea is a good one.

Customers like the girl runners. Any girl who gets a job must be better than average appearance, personality and character.

Neither company takes girls under 18 years old. Postal takes them up to 23 years. Western Union draws the age limit at 21.

Both companies like them "ummmm" — you know — not too fat and not too thin. The ideal applicant is five feet, three inches high, between 110 and 115 pounds. Applicants must be pretty, but no glamour stuff—no vamps.

"We really prefer girls who can advance to a better position," Simon declared.

Before the war is over both companies expect to have more girl messengers than boys.

"Even after the war, I believe we will go on hiring the girls," Simon said.

"They're good for business," Blume added.

"If they'd only stick around for a while."

SOVIETS CRACK THREE THRUSTS AT STALINGRAD

Roll Foe Back at Volga as Germans Increase Threat In Black Sea Area.

a number of prisoners were taken and some equipment captured.

In a nearby sector, two companies of German infantry were reported wiped out in a fierce engagement.

Southwest of Stalingrad, the Russians opened up with a terrific curtain of mortar and machine-gun fire after the Germans pierced their defenses and then, in the confusion, struck at the Nazi flank and sent the Germans reeling into retreat, the communique said.

"A short time later the Hitlerites launched another attack in this sector which likewise failed," the communique said.

All indications were that the Russian position remained strong in this great battle for the Volga despite a broadcast from Germany Saturday which said the fall of Stalingrad could be expected within 48 hours or by today.

While the Red army was writing a proud page of history under the brutal battering at Stalingrad, German mountain troops were moving into the forbidding passes of the Caucasus mountains in the first phase of a campaign to conquer that difficult barrier.

The Russians said the Germans had failed everywhere in this maneuver, but Red Star said that German, Rumanian and Italian mountain troops were attempting to move behind the Russian mountain positions, climbing the difficult passes with pack animals.

Strong German forces moving along the Rostov-Baku railroad engaged the Red army in a fierce engagement in the Mozdok area, only 55 miles from the oil wells of Grozny, the Russian midnight communique said, adding that 800 Germans were killed and considerable German equipment, including eight tanks, destroyed.

The communique said that more than 350 Germans were killed in the operation northwest of Stalingrad in which it reported the Russian troops reoccupied "a number of populated places."

On the southwest approaches to the Volga river city, the Germans were reported attacking ceaselessly under an umbrella of planes, but the communique said "Soviet troops are holding their positions and repelling the enemy attacks. Gunners of one of our units destroyed 16 German tanks and about two German companies."

The Russians said 460 German planes were destroyed in the week ended yesterday while only 250 Soviet planes were lost. Russian warships in the Baltic sank a 10,000-ton German transport, the communique also reported.

It was reported that 70 German planes attempted to break through to Moscow Saturday but were intercepted and forced to turn back by Russian planes.

German Fighters Strike Sunderland

BERLIN (From German broadcasts) — (AP) — A strong formation of German fighters struck at Sunderland, on the east coast of England, last night, German officials reported today.

In daylight yesterday, they said, the town and harbor basin of Dover was attacked by fighters.

Informed sources reported also that long range batteries of the German navy shelled the south coast of England last night. Fires visible from a long distance were reported started.

50 British Prisoners Flee Camp in France

BERLIN (From German broadcasts)—(AP)—Fifty British war prisoners interned near Nice in unoccupied France escaped yesterday, the Berlin radio reported today in a dispatch from Paris. Two of the fugitives were said to have been captured later in the day while walking along the beach.

Chinese Recapture Samshui Territory

CHUNGKING, China— (AP) — Chinese forces have recaptured a number of important points near Samshui, terminus of the Canton-Samshui railway 25 miles west of south China's great port of Canton, a Central News dispatch said today.

The Japanese, it said, have retreated toward Samshui.

Other Japanese troops retiring from Lupao, river and highway center to the north of Samshui, were reported to have been cornered. A large quantity of booty already has fallen into Chinese hands there, Central News said.

GERMANS TALLY SINKING TOTALS

Claim 108,000 Tons of Shipping Sunk In Atlantic.

BERLIN (From German Broadcasts)—(AP)—German submarines have sunk 17 merchant ships totaling 108,000 tons in attacks on Allied shipping lanes off the eastern coast of America, in the Atlantic and off the west coast of Africa, the high command reported today.

(The announcement failed to specify the period covered by the reported sinkings, thus making it impossible to check the claim against Allied announcements of shipping losses.)

GEOGRAPHY TO BE UP IN AIR

Educator Predicts Study Based On Flying Distances.

HARRISBURG, Pa.—(AP)—America's school children soon will be taking a bird's eye view of their geography lessons, an educator predicted today.

"We are thinking now in terms Clarence E. Ackley, Pennsylvania's of air distance," declared Dr. deputy education head.

"Germany has been using air distances for geographical studies for a long while. They teach that a country or continent is 'so many hours distant from Berlin,'" he said.

five enemy fighters, probably destroyed 13 more and damaged another 25, a communique said.

Competent air observers in London, meanwhile, expressed the opinion that if the United States and Britain concentrated their aerial strength in this theater during the next three months instead of dispersing it over scattered world fronts, they could insure an eventual Allied victory.

Conversely, they said, the war might well be lost in the same period if the United Nations "continue to fight the way Hitler wants them to on dispersed fronts."

These commentators, who asked that their names not be used, said a concentration of strength would help the Russians by forcing the Germans to withdraw some of their planes from the eastern front, would insure air supremacy necessary for an Allied invasion of Europe and would permanently cripple German war industries.

The main target of the Flying Fortresses yesterday was a factory at Meaulte which is engaged in the manufacture of airplane parts, three squadrons taking part in this assault. The fourth squadron bombed an airdrome at St. Omer.

Returning fliers said heavy opposition was encountered over Meaulte, which the Flying Fortresses were attacking for the second time since they began operations in this theater Aug. 17.

The pilot of a Spitfire fighter helping to escort the bombers said the formation was engaged by a swarm of Germany's vaunted new Focke-Wulf 190 fighters as soon as it crossed the French coast.

"The fight continued on and off all the way to the target and most of the way back to the French coast," he said. "It was one of the toughest spots we have been in for some time."

An hour before the Flying Fortresses took off on their mission, American-manned Boston bombers—escorted by three squadrons of American fighters and a squadron of Canadian fighters—attacked the Nazi airfield at Abbeville, returning without loss.

In the interim between these daylight forays and the night assault upon western German Bostons of the RAF, accompanied by Spitfires, bombed the docks at Boulogne. One plane failed to return.

TWO INJURED

Mansfielders Hurt In Auto Crash Near Shelby.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Kiley, both 49, of 142 Bowman street, suffered lacerations and bruises shortly after noon Sunday when a car driven by Mrs. Kiley figured in a collision with one operated by Rev. Russell Henderer, 34, Ashland, at the junction of State Routes 96 and 178 east of Shelby.

They were the only persons reported injured in holiday traffic in the county although a number of minor mishaps were investigated by state highway patrolmen and police.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Kiley were taken to Shelby Memorial hospital for treatment, but neither was believed hurt seriously.

Mrs. Kiley told state highway patrolmen she drove onto Route 96 from the north and that she failed to see Rev. Henderer's car because of tall corn along the road.

Cars driven by Richard Wendland, 221 South Mulberry street, and Hilda M. Ward, 97½ West Third street, were reported damaged in a collision Saturday night on West Fourth street.

Norman Jurgens, Ashland, and William Huffman, Mansfield R. D. 3, escaped injury when their autos collided at North Diamond and North Park streets early Sunday.

FLIER ESCAPES BURNING PLANE

Tells First-Hand Story of Six-Hour Swim, Rescue From Pacific Island.

daughter live in San Diego, Calif. His mother lives in Valparaiso.

Here's his story:

"I was leading a flight of planes when they told us 40 Japanese bombers had passed over Guadalcanal island. We flew about 50 miles and caught up with them but there were only 33, so somebody must have knocked off seven before we got there.

"We were just getting ready to go in on them when a flock of Zeros lurking on the other side whipped under them and up at us. We didn't get a crack at the bombers but sure let those Zeros have it."

"I saw tracer bullets going past me. One bullet nicked me on the forehead and knocked my goggles off. Fire broke out in the cockpit and I tried to bail out but the radio cord caught me and sat me right down again.

"I broke the cord and jumped out at about 3,000 feet. I didn't pull the rip-cord right away because I thought they would follow the parachute down and machine-gun me.

"That was my first jump in 11 years of flying. I dropped comfortably with my back toward the water and the only sensation of falling was from the flying suit flapping on my legs.

"I looked over my shoulder and saw the water was getting pretty close, and pulled the cord. The chute went between my legs in a wad and nearly broke my back when it opened. About the same time, I hit the water flat on my back. Two Zeros came down close to me in the water but didn't shoot.

"I was within about four miles of a tiny isle and started paddling toward it. My life-jacket must have been damaged by fire because it wouldn't stay inflated. I kept blowing it up but finally gave up and threw it away. I also let go my pistol and knife and took off all clothes except my underwear.

"I swam hard but didn't seem to make much progress. When I got so tired I couldn't swim another stroke I would float on my back and rest up for a little more. Those rest periods got more and more frequent.

"I bailed out in mid-afternoon and didn't reach the island until after dark. I couldn't see it but guided myself by the stars. I didn't know I had hit land until I felt the reef against my back.

"I went a few steps on the beach and fell exhausted. I don't know how long I slept. It was still dark when I woke up but I could hear cattle and went exploring. I couldn't find a human being on the whole island but did find a bull and two heifers."

Firebaugh was suffering from thirst but didn't dare drink until daylight from a barrel he found half full of water. When dawn came, he could see the water at least looked clean.

He decided to build a raft out of an old window-frame, logs and weeds and to try to reach a bigger island nearby, where he thought he would find some inhabitants.

After a second night on the little island—virtually sleepless nights because of ants and mosquitoes—Firebaugh finished the raft and set out under an overcast sky, thinking he would thus avoid a blistering sunburn. The overcast lifted in 90 minutes and the hot sun bore down upon him.

Five hours later, badly sunburned, he landed on a beach near a native village and two natives came toward him. One brandished a knife but he made friends with them and they directed him to a black missionary who in turn sent him on to the white representative on the island. After seven days on the island he took a shaky ride in a little boat whose single motor was 30 years old. Eventually he was picked up by a navy plane.

His plans?

"I want to get back to my carrier and get another plane."

Eighth Ohio Vets, Fewer and Greyer, Re-affirm Pledges

of World war 1," he said, "but a national apathy failed to heed the warning."

Former U. S. Senator Charles Dick, Akron, who was lieutenant colonel of the Eighth O. V. I., and who later rose to the rank of major general, was proclaimed as the father of the national defense movement in Ohio. General Dick led the reminiscence hour.

"Soldiers of the War with Spain," said George Rakestraw, state U. S. W. V. adjutant, "formed the first 100 per cent volunteer army in the world's history—we can't lay down now. We must get solidly behind every function looking to the successful prosecution of the current war against the Axis powers."

Company M of Mansfield was a combat unit of this regiment which was composed of companies from nearby cities. Following an address of welcome by Police Chief Thomas M. Bell, regimental veteran, and the response by Guy Hiltabiddle, Akron, community singing was led by James Brownscombe of Alfred I. Harrington V. F. W. post.

John Robinson, Akron, delivered a brief memorial to the regiment's dead, representatives of each company then responding briefly to roll call. Vocal numbers by Frank Lee Daniels, accompanied by Mrs. W. W. Webb, preceded the addresses of Comrades Liggett and Rakestraw, who left immediately for Athens to attend a U. S. W. V. booster meeting today and where Adjutant Rakestraw will preside at a monument dedication.

An appropriate address was given by Rev. Grover E. Swoyer of the First English Lutheran church. The night session closed with the singing of America, following specialty numbers by Eugene Eyerly and Eugene Traxler.

At 11 a. m. today the veterans were to convene in business session. Officers for the coming year were to be selected and th 1943 reunion city chosen. The dinner meeting at 12:30 p. m. will end the sessions.

Thomas D. Brown was chairman of Sunday's rally. Local arrangements were made by Chief Bell, Brown, Richard Ricketts and Charles Hughes after they were notified three weeks ago that no room accommodations would be available for such a crowd in Akron.

"Every nook and cranny is occupied by a war worker or war or navy department officer," an Akron veteran explained. "In every issue of the Beacon Journal rewards of $10 to $25 are offered for anyone who will direct a newcomer to a rentable room or apartment."

LABOR'S READY

Green Says Workers Prepared To Make Sacrifices.

OMAHA— (AP) —President William Green of the American Federation of Labor declared today American labor was willing to make sacrifices entailed in the wage stabilization program President Roosevelt is expected to announce tonight.

Further sacrifices were hinted by Chairman Paul V. McNutt of the war manpower commission, who shared the speakers' platform with Green.

McNutt in a prepared speech disclosed the commission "has a committee studying" the need for a universal service act and said he would forward the committee's recommendations to the president "at any time the need is clear." He emphasized the commission "has reached no consensus as to when, or how, or if universal service must come."

Ohio's Workers Pledge Victory

(By Associated Press)

Tools of war poured in undiminished volume from booming factories today—Labor Day—as Ohio's worker legions rededicated themselves to victory over Axis aggressors.

Eager hands manned machines producing materials important to America's war effort as fellow workmen, off duty, participated in formal observances of the holiday.

Closely linked by a common cause, labor thrust inter-union differences into the discard. Shoulder to shoulder, CIO and AFL unionsist join in parades and programs.

War Production Chief Donald M. Nelson will address a big Cleveland rally sponsored by the two organizations and the powerful railroad brotherhoods.

Maury Maverick, chief of the bureau of government requirements and former Texas congressman, will speak at a similar meeting at Akron. Clinton S. Golden, aide to President Phillip Murray of the CIO, and Maj. Carl W. Rich of the Army Labor Morale office are on Labor's program at Portsmouth. Mansfield will hear Vice President Sherman Dalrymple of the United Rubber Workers.

These celebrations will be staged before a backdrop of plants whirring at capacity tempo.

Said George A. Strain, state director of industrial relations:

"Ohio labor will observe Labor Day by continuing their part in producing war materials."

flight aeronautics will be offered for the first time. It will afford preliminary instruction for prospective fliers.

Scores of new teachers, mostly women, will take their places in the city and county schools, replacing instructors who have been called into service by Uncle Sam or resigned to take better-paying jobs in war industries.

The teacher shortage has puzzled boards of education since last spring. Most boards in the county have worked all summer to complete their staffs and they are uncertain now about how much longer they will be able to keep their few remaining men teachers.

In Mansfield, St. Peter's pupils will return to their classrooms Tuesday after first attending mass in St. Peter's church where Msgr. R. C. Goebel will bestow the blessing on the school year. Pupils will be dismissed at noon.

Air raid drills will be the only innovation in the first week at St. Peter's school. The church basement will be used as a shelter for high school pupils. The halls of the elementary building will provide a refuge for grade pupils.

Country Day school will have approximately 40 pupils enrolled in the grades and kindergarten when it opens Wednesday. Miss Margaret Cayford, new director of the school, said classes will be held throughout the day.

The faculty of the school with the exception of Miss Cayford, a teacher there for several years, is new this season. Miss Agnes Ghysels of Grand Rapids, will be in charge of third, fourth and fifth grades while Mrs. Ethel Louise Carpenter will instruct the kindergarten. Miss Cayford will teach the two lower grades.

Mrs. Carpenter, who came here from Richfort, Vt., taught in Bolivia in 1940-41. Her husband is an army lieutenant at Fort Bragg.

ARREST EIGHT OVER WEEK-END

State Patrolmen, Mansfield Police Nab Violators of Traffic Laws.

Eight motorists, most of them from outside Richland county, were arrested by state highway patrolmen and Mansfield police over the week-end for traffic violations in and near the city.

Seven were cited for speeding and the other on a charge of unsafe operation after his car figured in a minor mishap Saturday night at Park avenue and Main street.

Arrested by state patrolmen on charges of speeding on U. S. route 42 north of the city were Roy E. Armann, Akron; Bernie Napier, Cleveland; Raymond Smith, Mansfield R. D.; Eugene Wallace Green, Cleveland; Marion S. Naruszewics, Cleveland, and Samuel O. Demascio, Corapolis, Pa.

Armann and Napier were released after posting $25 bond each, while the others posted $16.30 bond and signed waivers of appearance in court.

Harold W. Thompson, Tacoma, Wash., arrested by patrolmen on U. S. route 30-s and charged with speeding 65 miles per hour, also posted $16.30 bond and signed a waiver.

Wayne Merlin Queen, Lexington, arrested by police on a charge of unsafe operation, was ordered to appear in traffic court Tuesday morning and released under $25 bond.

Police said Queen's car collided with one driven by Lawrence Koons, Wellington, Saturday night at Park avenue and Main street.

Axis radio broadcasts describing Rommel's maneuver as "a reconnaissance in force," declaring that they had attacked concentrations of enemy motor vehicles thousands strong.

In addition to his losses in tanks and trucks, Rommel was said to have lost heavily in aircraft, the RAF reporting that 55 enemy planes were destroyed in combat in the first six days of fighting.

Allied losses both on the land and in the air were said to have been comparatively small.

The campaign was the first in the desert in which United States air force planes and American-manned tanks—except for a small "observation" trip—had participated.

Observers estimated that approximately half the equipment and supplies used to halt the German Africa corps came from the United States.

Wendell Willkie, who toured the front during the fighting, said on his return to Cairo that his confidence in the effectiveness of Egypt's defenses had been greatly increased by what he had seen.

"I was struck with the thought of what just a few more tanks, planes and guns could have done," he said. "Just a little more energy on the part of every American citizen is needed. American boys at the front asked me if I wouldn't urge Americans to get more material here."

Allied Fighters Rip Japs In Kokoda Jungle Area.

GEN. M'ARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS, Australia — (AP) — Swift Allied fighter planes carrying small bombs swooped down on Japanese positions in the jungles south of Kokoda three times yesterday, spraying machinegun bullets and bomb fragments among enemy units threatening the Allied base at Port Moresby, 60 miles to the west.

Allied ground forces, fighting the Japanese in these jungles of southeastern New Guinea, have frustrated all their attempts to break through to a pass in the Owen Stanley mountain range which would lead them to Port Moresby. No new developments in the ground fighting were reported.

The Allied planes were not opposed in the strafing expedition over Kokoda yesterday, it was said. Heavy Allied bombers attacked a Japanese cargo ship off the southeast coast of New Guinea, but the results of the attack were not known.

prices adjusted to living costs.

A tense congressional farm bloc waited to see if the president would seek to use his war powers to impose parity ceilings on farm products. At present the law provides that prices may rise to 110 per cent of parity, and several senators have warned that any effort to force prices below that level without congressional sanction would precipitate a bitter controversy.

Senator Norris (Ind-Neb.) said he hoped the president would not "make a mistake like that—it would raise hell in congress."

Senator McCarren (D-Nev.) said:

"If the president can set aside or freeze the action of congress, then the legislative branch of our democracy is on the way out. If he can set aside laws congress passes, then there is no need for congress."

As to wages and salaries, reliable but unquotable sources said the president would order them held in line with the cost of living.

To help finance the war and at the same time keep down consumer prices, the chief executive also was reported planning to stress the need for additional taxation and war bond buying.

Labor Day In the Midst of War

LABOR DAY! Here it is again, this time in the midst of a war which seriously threatens the institution of free labor in the United States after having already abolished human freedom in many other parts of the world.

Labor day this year is more than a holiday set apart to pay tribute to those who toil, and its observance is not confined to any particular group—it is an expression of the unity that has been brought about by war and signifies willingness to put aside minor differences until victory has been won by the United Nations, upon which rests the only hope of escaping totalitarian slavery.

It was said in this column a year ago that "Labor day comes in the midst of national confusion and danger such as has not previously existed since the idea of observing this holiday was born in 1882."

Not long thereafter came the actual plunge into a war for which this nation was ill-prepared and which threw an immediate heavy burden on every American—a responsibility from which none can be excused.

In addition to recruiting and training millions of young men for military service it became urgent to speed production of ships, planes, tanks, guns and many other items of war equipment and supplies.

To do this it was not only necessary to convert thousands of factories to the production of war materials but it was essential to have close co-operation of management and employes.

Be it said to the everlasting credit of American labor that in a high percentage of cases the gigantic task that workers have entered upon is being magnificently performed and that it is only in isolated instances that individual greed and self interest have been detrimental to the nation's war effort.

Many causes, some attributable to confused national leadership, have entered into the controversies, strikes, work-stoppages, and the like, which have interfered with maximum production of war materials and also have had a disheartening effect on men in the military services who are risking their lives for their country—and for those who remain at home.

Emphasis is being given to the grim fact that the war is still far from being won—that a long, hard struggle lies ahead, and that every ounce of strength the United States can muster will be required to achieve victory.

In an address today President Roosevelt will make a further call to the American people to co-operate in every possible way to help win the war—even to the extent of accepting whatever temporary sacrifices may be necessary in that accomplishment.

This is Labor day—1942—God grant that there may be other similar observances in the future and that the high ideals which find expression in "the American way of life" may not perish from the earth.

How Carelessness Encourages Theft

OPTIMISTIC proponents of the theory that "the world is getting better" are probably having enough trouble just now in adjusting their thesis to existing conditions without introduction of additional negative arguments.

But, whatever may be the cause, the time in which it was safe to leave doors of homes unlocked while the family was away, to park the car without removing the ignition key—and similar acts of carelessness or unjustified confidence—seems to have passed.

In one of the larger cities, where stealing has been considerably reduced, the police department offers suggestions which are equally applicable elsewhere. Here are a few of them:

"If you leave the house in the afternoon or at night, don't leave it dark, or even with just one living room light burning. A single lamp next to the living room window, with the rest of the house dark, is a dead giveaway. . . . When you go out be sure that all doors and windows are tightly closed.

"When you leave your car for even 30 seconds, take the keys with you. Nearly all stolen cars had keys left in them. Many stolen cars are taken when owners have left them for only a few minutes. Lock your garage doors when you put the car away.

"If you must leave valuables in the car lock them in the trunk compartment. The glove compartment won't do. It's a handy shelf but not a safe deposit box."

Any reader—possibly from personal sad experience—can add to these suggestions, which conclude: "We couldn't possibly hire enough policemen to offset the carelessness of persons who deliberately invite lawbreakers to rob them."

History Repeating In Russia

NAPOLEON'S Russian campaign is often in people's minds when they read of today's tremendous counterpart. It is not always known how near the Russians of 1812 came to losing. The invasion was marked by one great battle, Borodino. In this, out of their 112,000 men the Russians lost 58,000, more than one half. So dreadful were the Russian losses that they forced the surrender of Moscow. Yet Kutuzov, the Russian commander, never lost hope, saying, "As long as the army exists and is in condition to oppose the enemy, we preserve the hope of winning the war: but if the army is destroyed, Moscow and Russia will perish."

Today resembles 1812 in its bloody fighting, but today as in 1812, so long as the army survives, Russia remains as an ever-present danger to Hitler.

Still Too Many Traffic Accidents

TRAFFIC ACCIDENTS are declining in this country, but not so rapidly as they should. July fatalities, though 20 per cent less than in recent years, do not seem to represent any percentage improvement over pre-war figures. That is, with fewer cars and trucks on the road, the drivers do not appear to be driving any more safely than they did when the roads were crowded. If this is really the situation, you might say it represents a loss rather than a gain, for less used roads should mean more freedom from accident.

The net result for this year is now expected to be about 30,000 traffic deaths. This would be a shocking thing at any time, and is especially so when human life is so valuable, for every reason, as it is today.

Some conscientious objectors have been assigned to work as hospital aids—but how will they feel about killing germs?

And just to think—there was a time when an earthquake in Japan was a matter of regret.

Practical Courses

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

SHOULD young Susie be compelled to take a domestic science course even though she loathes the look of a gas range and is hell-bent on being a career woman or a WAAC? Should Brother Ed have to take shop during Hi although he can't tell a monkey wrench from a drill press, and his heart is set upon Little Theaters or journalism?

We opined they should, some weeks ago. Now comes a lusty protest from Richard Barnes Kennan, executive secretary of the Maine Teachers' Association. Says Citizen Kennan:

"Every war brings about a controversy over the practical versus the cultural courses in the school curricula. When you take the stand that boys should be compelled to take 'shop' courses and girls to take domestic science courses, you challenge one of the fundamental democratic ideas of the secondary school. Most of us would agree with you as to the value of such courses for all boys and girls. On the other hand, most school people would say that we prefer the American system where boys and girls and their parents are given choices as to what the schools shall teach young America.

"In most of the enemy countries today, the state dictates the program and determines exactly what shall be taught to each boy and girl and how long he shall be allowed to attend school. Here in America we try to adjust the school to the youngsters' needs and we try to advise them as to the courses we believe will be best for them."

THERE you have the makings of as fine a shindig as these United States ever saw, in which you're cordially invited to participate. There's much more to Mr. Kennan's splendid letter, for which I regret we lack space, but his point is that individual preference, both on the part of the child and the ambitious parent, should come first in shaping the school program. That's democracy, says he. And it's a blow against democracy to shove them around.

Then how about math, grammar and history, neighbors? We do not consider it undemocratic to insist that these be compulsory courses. We don't feel that we're stunting junior's or sister's individuality in demanding that they acquire the bare fundamentals of education. But isn't food as fundamental as arithmetic? Isn't a practical knowledge of tools as vital as the rules of grammar?

"Adjust the school to the youngsters' needs?" By all means; But how many inexperienced, irresponsible youngsters are capable of judging the fundamental needs of their own lives, much less those of their nation?

No girl, however talented or wealthy she may be, is fit to have a home or direct servants in that home unless she knows what housework means in terms of human energy and the value of food.

No boy is fit to take a regular man's place in life until he has a working knowledge of masculine chores. And if this be a blow to "American culture," then it's time we got over our culture and made a fresh start.

I have yet to meet the lady lawyer who would not have understood human problems far better if she had tangled with a few bridal biscuits. I have yet to see the talented young journalist whose technique would not have been vastly improved if he'd learned how to nail up a screen door, and sweated the sweat required therefor. Particularly is this true at a time of national emergency such as this.

But that's just one woman's opinion and you have every chance to disagree with it. So shoot the works and we'll try to show America your side of the question.

Union Chiefs Tell Why Free Labor Will Win

By WILLIAM GREEN

President, American Federation of Labor.

WASHINGTON—"Free Labor Will Win!"

We need no longer pledge that free labor will outproduce slave labor. The workers of America are actually doing it. They have broken every production schedule. They are setting new records every day. They are producing the weapons of war in hitherto unheard of quantities.

WILLIAM GREEN

Yes, free labor will win! And the American Federation of Labor is determined to keep labor free so that we may win.

Since the outbreak of war, many short-sighted persons and selfish interests have been hammering at labor's freedom, but the American Federation of Labor has resisted every challenge triumphantly.

At the very outset of the war, labor rose to the occasion by voluntarily relinquishing the exercise of its right to strike for the duration of the war. Many of our enemies were not satisfied and sought to abolish the right to strike by various compulsory methods. We warned then that much more could be accomplished by free workers acting on their own volition than by force or compulsion.

The results testify to the soundness of our position. The record of steady, uninterrupted hard work piled up by the six million members of the American Federation of Labor since Pearl Harbor is unmatched anywhere in the economic history of any nation in the world.

On this critical Labor day, let us dedicate ourselves to doing everything in our power to preserve the freedom of humanity.

Regardless of initial defeats, regardless of the precarious situation of some of our allies, we of the American Federation of Labor have an unshaken and unconquerable confidence in the eventual triumph of our cause. We are going to win this war and when the fighting is over we are going to make our victory over the forces of hate and oppression permanent.

We are determined that when the terms of peace are written the four freedoms enunciated by President Roosevelt shall be established for all time throughout the world. And in addition to those freedoms — freedom of speech and religion, freedom from want and fear — labor will insist on a fifth essential element to this glorious code. That is the freedom of workers in every land to join free and democratic trade unions of their own choice. This is labor's own peace plank and no force on earth can stop us from making it a reality.

By PHILIP MURRAY

President, Congress of Industrial Organizations.

WASHINGTON—On this most critical Labor Day in our history, American Labor has chosen as its slogan: "Free Labor Will Win!"

This slogan is an expression of labor's determination to devote all its efforts to victory. It is a pledge to our country and to all the freedom-loving peoples of the world. It is a challenge to our enemies and a promise of liberation to the people they have enslaved. And we firmly believe this slogan is also a plain statement of fact.

PHILIP MURRAY

America's union men and women have known from the first that this is labor's war. We have seen what Hitler and his fellow slave-masters have done to the working people in every country on which they have laid their foul hands. We have seen unions destroyed, trade unionists beaten, imprisoned and killed and bestial conditions imposed on the workers. We know we are fighting in this war to preserve our right to organize and to defend every one of the liberties we cherish more than our lives.

The Congress of Industrial Organizations has taken leadership in every effort to increase war production. Along with the rest of organized labor, we have given up our right to strike for the war's duration—so nothing may interfere with the production of more and more tanks, guns, planes, ships to crush the Axis. And we can take pride, on this Labor day, in the splendid results of labor's all-out effort, which show that our free labor is already out-producing the slave labor of the Axis powers.

But while we call for more and more effort to increase production, we also insist that victory can only be won if labor is kept free. On the home front, we staunchly resist all schemes to destroy labor's democratic rights, to freeze its wages and to hamstring its unions. American workers must be kept free, if the boundless energy and enthusiasm of free men and women are to be utilized to the utmost in our supreme effort for victory.

On behalf of the millions of members of the CIO, I can pledge our complete and loyal support for the war leadership of our commander-in-chief, President Roosevelt; our wholehearted co-operation with all other sections of labor, with management and with all other true Americans, for united war effort; our solidarity with labor and the peoples of all the United Nations; and our unswerving determination that free labor shall win.

U. S. Bids for Spain's Goodwill

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON — Spanish America being pretty generally in sympathy or actually allied with the United States against the Axis, Uncle Sam is bidding strongly now for European Spain's friendship on the democratic nations' side.

Herr Hitler likewise is making handsome promises in order to induce the Madrid regime to join his group.

Presumably he isn't asking for outright military aid but for a co-operative policy Germanyward. For geographical reasons this would be very helpful to him. Hence, no doubt, the democracies' anxiety to forestall him with the Spaniards' dictator, Caudillo Franco, who, by the way, is much the same sort of despot as Adolf himself. Our immediate consideration, however, is to keep him from hooking up with the Fuehrer and Duce Mussolini.

It's as much to the interest of the other democracies as it is to that of the United States to prevent the inclusion of Spain in Herr Hitler's orbit, but the job evidently has been assigned mainly to the U. S. A., due to the European Latins' relationship with the new world's Latins and our own neighborliness with the latter.

A Direct Appeal.

For instance, Inter-American Co-ordinator Nelson Rockefeller is on a tour of a number of our southerly western-hemispherical allies and President Roosevelt says he suggested to young Rockefeller the desirability of discussing with their various officialdoms a tentative Pan-American plan to aid Spain in repairing damage suffered in the course of its recent civil war—of course assuming that it remains neutral in the current conflict. It'll be purely voluntary aid from private sources, the president explained, and he emphasized that the suggestion by no means is intended to influence the Spaniards. It would seem as if it would be calculated to influence 'em, nevertheless.

President Eric A. Johnston of the United States Chamber of Commerce, in a radio broadcast the other day, directly to Spanish businessmen, transmitted both a warning and a promise.

His warning was that Herr Hitler is trying to enslave 'em.

His promise was that the Americas will usher 'em into an era of boundless prosperity after the war, if they'll turn Adolf down and stay un-enslaved.

Not an unimpressive chorus!—the president of the United States, the president of the U. S. Chamber of Commerce and Co-ordinator Rockefeller!—to be followed by utterances from a formidable bunch of Latin American notabilities!

Perhaps it's noticeable that these appeals are addressed rather to the Spanish people, especially to their businessmen, than to the Madrid government. The conclusion's obvious. Caudillo Franco's the government and there's a strong suspicion that Herr Hitler's his real boss, just as he's Mussolini's boss. So maybe the idea is to go over his head popularly. He became dictator only after a hard-fought civil war with Axis assistance. The folk he licked are very likely to be quite ready to insurrect again and it's a fair guess that the Nazis and Fascists are too busy elsewhere to support him again.

If he has another rebellion on his hands, he'll have Portugal to deal with also.

Portugal Is Bait.

It's well known that Herr Hitler has agreed to give him the Portuguese republic if he'll be pro-Axisly good. With a united Spain back of him and Axis aid, he could grab Portugal overnight.

Herr Hitler's game is to get into northwestern Africa and down to that much-talked-about part of Dakar.

Not being navally strong enough, he's got to do it through Spain and across Gibraltar, a mere aviatorial hop.

That's why Spain is so crucial.

Health and Diet

Physical Problems In Efficient Reading.

—By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

ILLITERACY in the United States is lower than in any other country in the world and is almost as low as it can ever be made. This affirmation is made in spite of alarmist misinterpretation, based on the figures that 430,000 men had been deferred for army service because of inability to meet the army's educational requirements. The educational standards of the army are far higher than in the first World war.

In the present generation 95 per cent of children between the ages of 10 and 13 are attending school and have been for at least four years. Of actual illiterates, unable to read and write, 71 per cent are survivors of the pre-1914 immigration, where foreign language difficulties were never overcome, and Negroes.

Statistics on the subject of how efficient reading is in the general population are not so encouraging as those on stark illiteracy. About 30 per cent of pupils in the sixth grade read no faster than they did in the fourth grade. A fifth grade child should read 182 words a minute; a seventh grade child, 230 words; a high school pupil, 300 words, and a college student, 350 to 500 words. This means not only reading words, but also grasping the meaning. You should be able to read this column, in 1½ to 2 minutes.

Backwardness In Reading.

Backwardness in reading for any child should be a real concern to parents. Of course, probably the commonest cause is a visual defect which never became evident in the younger years when close vision was unnecessary.

There is a group of non-readers, however, who have good vision, good intelligence, but are backward. I referred to studies on them made by Dr. Kirkpatrick, of New York, and would like to explain somewhat further.

Ten types of errors were listed: pronunciation of vowels, pronunciation of consonants, reversals, additions of sounds or words, omissions, substitutions, repetitions, and words whose pronunciation required help from the teacher. The last group was the highest (30 per cent), with substitution and addition about 10 per cent, and troubles with vowels and consonants about 20 per cent.

Causes of Backwardness.

Studied psychologically, 19 out of 25 students in this group were read to by some member of the family. It is debatable whether parents should read to children of school age. Reading, like speech, is born of necessity. This group of children were "followers"; they tended to be dependent and probably always would be.

Timidity was put down as the cause in 13 children, and lack of interest in 10. Retardation in teething, walking and talking had been noticed in six of these. A foreign language was spoken in 10 homes. One child never had learned to speak English until he started to school.

Looking Back

TWENTY YEARS AGO TODAY

Thursday, September 7, 1922.

Nommees for county offices started campaigning but were bothered by the heat.

George Baer of Cline avenue, was thrown from buggy when horse ran away on Park avenue west.

Mrs. William J. Conley, 79½ West Fifth street, died.

Miss Elizabeth Bell entertained friends at birthday party at Elks grill.

Edward O'Donnell, jr., was re-elected grand knight of the Knights of Columbus.

Dr. Leopold Adams bought the D. C. Elkins home on Marion avenue.

Mrs. Myron E. Davis went to Montgomery, W. Va., to join faculty of New River State college.

Sixty attended community picnic supper at Hedges school park.

TODAY IN HISTORY

On this day in 1916 the treaty between the United States and Denmark for the purchase of the Danish West Indies for the sum of $25,000,000 was ratified by the United States senate. The group consisted of three islands, St. Thomas, St. Croix and St. John, with 50 smaller ones, mostly uninhabited.

LIFE'S LIKE THAT

"I don't believe I'll go to school this fall, Pop . . . everything probably will be a military secret, anyhow."

Timely Editorial

Keep Fit.

If there were no sickness among workers, our production front would save the equivalent of 150,000 men working five eight-hour days a week.

That is as much manpower as we lose through those accidents which do not kill the victims.

That is enough manpower to build 42,000 more bombers, 30 dreadnaughts, 100,000 tanks.

It is a patriotic duty now to keep well. We can't avoid all illnesses, but government experts believe we could save eighty million working days—almost a third of the total that is lost—by reasonable care.

One of the most vital points of attack against sickness, the experts say, is the lunch box. Nutritious, disease-resistant food is as easy and inexpensive to prepare as the unbalanced diet that many workers take to the shop.—Sandusky Register.

Man About Manhattan

Hither and Yon

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—Camp Smith, at Peekskill, New York, is where regiments of the New York Guard received their field training this summer. When the 69th regiment arrived in camp—a regiment noted for its high number of Irish members — things went smoothly for several days. Finally the camp paper appeared with this little note at the bottom of one of the columns:

"We haven't seen a single Irishman in the 69th yet."

Presently a mob began to form and, so they say, you could hear the angry buzz of Erin's sons as they mapped out a campaign and then headed in the direction of the press room.

They arrived. They invaded the press room and laid hands on the man who had written that line.

"So you haven't seen any Irish in the 69th, eh, Bud. Well, come with us, and you'll see all the Irish you ever want to see."

They took him out, and crossed the camp to the far side of the rifle range.

They ordered him to take down his pants.

They produced a can of green paint.

Then they painted on him, in vivid green, this token: "69th."

Then they photographed it, "for the record."

They marched gaily back to camp to the tune of "The Wearing of the Green."

BOB HAWK, radio's question-asker, was in a box at Ebbets Field watching the Dodgers win one when a foul swished by his head at terrific speed and bounced into an empty seat.

"Whew," commented Bob, "another quarter inch and Hawk would have been a dead pigeon."

THE Broadway columnists were caught flat-footed with the announcement of Gypsy Rose Lee's romance with the actor Alexander Kirkland. Not a single one of them had any inkling what was going on. . . . Gypsy's success with whodunit thrillers has gained as much publicity for her as her striptease dancing on Broadway. Her newest is going to be "Mother Finds a Body," another murder mystery with a bawdy background, due in October.

A Farmer's Diary

Feel of Autumn

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

THREE weeks ago I watched a rich red leaf flutter down from the gum tree to accent the dark gray tattered waste of the woods floor. Like the first spring bluebird, or a straw in the wind, it was a sign. Today I passed that way again. A score more lay on the ground at the roots of the tree, and every branch bore tints of varying gaudiness.

Long rows of swallows twit earnestly together upon the wires beside the road, then make sudden flights as if rivaling each other in migratory power. Some preen their glossy feathers, or look idly with one speculating eye, toward the waning sun.

Afternoons are shorter. Sassafras on the slope waves branches of old rose and soft light pink, edged with cooler folds of green. The sumac's compound under leaves begin to redden. A nuthatch slides down an oak and wedges a small green acorn tight into a crevice of the rough bark. The slatewinged shrike is busy with his butchering. He hangs his catch of fat field mice, sparrows, katydids and juicy grasshoppers about his den in the white thorn bush.

Ten days ago I saw the first bloom of goldenrod, high on a sandy hill. Now threads of this yellow cheerful weed wave from all roadsides and neglected fencerows. Iron weed is vivid in the lowland pastures, its purple sprays taller than the backs of the cattle. I have seen the faintest hint of bloom on the opening buds of gentians—though just where I came upon so rare a flower, I dare not tell.

These short dreamy afternoons the distant timbered hills are wrapped in light blue haze. Ranges rising farther back are blotted out. The fields, spread out upon the hills, like patches of a quilt, show checks of dark green pasture, tan fallow for wheat, and long rows of soybean haycocks, drying in the sun. Ageing fields of corn stand with long sagging ears.

Each dewy cool morning brings millions of webs into evidence. Purple and yellow butterflies vie with goldfinches about the tops of blooming and seeding thistles. The neighbor's boy with his tractor at second speed, rips up the oats stubble for wheat.

'GHOST' BURNS UP ROME RADIO

LONDON — (INS) — Wartime broadcasting's worst nuisance is back — the "Ghost Voice"—only this time it's horning in on Rome radio and drowning out the government announcers with wisecracks.

Causing acute jitters—as evidenced by the Italian's jamming their own broadcasts to get rid of the Intruder—the voice last night made itself heard to say:

"Aw, we're tired of the war. The Italian people want peace. And they don't want Musolini."

No indication has come from Rome that the authorities know who is "the voice" or how to stop it.

And if London or Moscow know who it is—they're not telling.

NEW TEACHERS

Bucyrus Schools Will Have 44 Different Instructors.

BUCYRUS — Forty-four new teachers, the largest number to enter county and city schools on record, will greet new students when they return for classes tomorrow.

Among the new teachers will be a number of married women who are returning to teaching jobs to fill vacancies caused by men teachers being called to service or war time employment.

There will be two familiar faces missing, however, those of Miss Olga Winegartner, visiting teacher for past several years and former elementary teacher and principal and Miss Ursula Mills, who retires after 36 years of teaching.

Proud of her record of never being late to school and absent only three days, those during her last year of teaching, Miss Mills leaves the school system where she has taught three generations.

GALION TO PUT QUARRY IN USE

GALION—Water department officials have begun the work of draining the stone quarry on County Line road and on the Hurley farm, city officials have announced. The project is in preparation for the cleaning of the quarry as part of the water storage program on the farm.

Fred Ernst, Crawford county game warden, estimated that there are approximately two ton of fish in the draining quarry which will be taken to the Flowers stone quarry. Efforts are being made to save as many of them as possible.

PLAN MOBILIZATION

GALION—The Galion squadron of the Civil Air Patrol will take part in the fifth group mobilization of the Civil Air Patrol to be held in Mansfield Sept. 20, it has been announced by Eric Brooke, flight lieutenant. Squadrons based at Lorain, Sandusky, Wooster, Mansfield and Marion will be included in the mobilization.

DIES AFTER FALL

Millersburg Man Suffers Fractured Skull.

MILLERSBURG—August Blanchard, 70, died in Pomerene hospital at 8 p. m. Sunday of a skull fracture suffered earlier in the day when he accidentally plunged down a flight of cellar steps, striking his head against the concrete flooring.

Mr. Blanchard, a retired section foreman of the Pennsylvania railroad, had complained of a heart ailment during the day, according to his widow.

He also is survived by five brothers and three sisters. The body is at the Elliott mortuary pending funeral arrangements.

ASHLAND—Paul Sours of Ashland was fined $100 and costs by Common Pleas Judge H. E. Culbertson Saturday afternoon on a charge of driving while intoxicated. He was arrested near Perrysville Friday night by Sheriff L. D. Hammond.

William Harold Dishong, 19, of Akron, was fined $10 and costs early Sunday morning by Justice R. R. Teeter on a charge of reckless operation of a motor vehicle. He was arrested on U. S. Route 42 west Sunday at 3 a. m. by the sheriff's department.

MILLERSBURG CLUBS TO MEET

MILLERSBURG—Ladies of the Briar Hill Country club will meet at the home of Mrs. Luther High for a dessert bridge Wednesday, Sept. 16 at 7 p. m. Mrs. John Wynne will be assisting hostess.

* * *

Get-To-Gether club will meet at the home of Mrs. Truman Uhl, west of Holmesville, Wednesday. A volunteer program will be given.

* * *

A miscellaneous shower will be held for Mr. and Mrs. Earl Rockenfelder Wednesday evening, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Kinsey, southeast of Nashville.

PASTOR RETURNS

GALION—Filling the pulpit for his first Sunday in Galion was Rev. C. V. Roop, pastor of the United Brethren church. Rev. Roop succeeds the late Rev. O. E. Knepp. He has been doing special evangelical work for the past year and comes to Galion from Findlay. He was also pastor of the United Brethren church in Marion for 13 years.

GET LICENSES

ASHLAND—The following marriage licenses have been issued in probate court here: Charles Robert Whitcomb, printer, and Lavona T. Deardorf, comptometer operator, both of Ashland.

Norman R. Payne, Willard Storage Battery, Cleveland, and Almedia A. Null, at home, Ashland.

GETS BRIDLE PATH

BUCYRUS — A bridle path at Aumiller park for the growing number of riding horse enthusiasts in Bucyrus was assured today when members of the park board gave their unanimous approval to providing a path about the outer edge of the park. Approximately 45 riding horses are owned locally.

Motorists May Find Highways Bumpy This Year

RAVENNA —(INS)— Motorists may find highways and roads bumpy this year—if they possess enough rubber to travel on them —according to Homer Anderson, division engineer of Ravenna.

He explained that maintenance and construction departments are now operating under strict orders from the government to maintain military roads above all else. These military roads all are heavily traveled highways.

"All roads not traveled in excess," he said, "will suffer from lack of repairs."

It was disputed whether many repairs would be needed, as tire and gas restrictions will lighten traffic through the remainder of the year, but the engineers insist that weather does considerable damage to roads and that there will always be work needed.

GETS NEW POST

MILLERSBURG—Miss Hannah Snyder, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Snyder, who for the past two years has been a dietician at the Waverly Hills sanitarium in Kentucky, has accepted a position as assistant dietician at the Indianapolis City hospital. She recently visited here with her parents.

OKLAHOMA SHIPS GOOBERS

MUSIC TEACHER JOINS SERVICE

Another Vacancy Created In Galion Faculty as Byrnes Leaves.

GALION—Another vacancy in the Galion public schools has been announced by Supt. M. A. Povenmire with the resignation of J. Wendell Byrnes, supervisor of music. Byrnes will enter the United States Army signal corps on Sept. 11. He will leave next Friday for Cleveland where he will receive his training before being assigned to Fort Benjamin Harrison, Ind.

Byrnes came to Galion from North Canton where he served as music director for eight years and had been in charge of instrumental music and the band at Galion for the past two years. He was graduated from Capital university and received his master's degree from Ohio State university. Last year he directed the Galion drive for new band uniforms for the 65-piece band.

According to the practice set up by the board of education Byrnes will be granted a leave-of-absence for the duration of the war. Superintendent Povenmire stated that no action has been made as yet to fill the vacancy.

Mrs. Byrnes expects to remain in Galion at their home at 213 Summit street.

MECHANIC DIES

Ashland Man Expires After Heart Attack Saturday.

ASHLAND—Iva V. Briggs, 48, died Saturday at 6:30 p. m. at his home here of a heart attack. An automobile mechanic, Mr. Briggs had been a resident of this county for the past 25 years.

Born March 13, 1894 in Manton, Mich., Mr. Briggs was married in 1920 to Ora Nelson, who survives him. Other survivors are two sons, Harrison of the U. S. Army, stationed at Ryan Field, Cal., and Clark Briggs at home; his mother, Mrs. Amber Briggs and one sister, Mrs. Joyce Sheppard, both of Hayesville.

The body is at the Denbow-Bear funeral home. Funeral arrangements have not been completed.

Air Conditioning Speeds Output Of Blast Furnaces

PORTSMOUTH —(INS)— Engineers have completed new type "air conditioning" systems for the blast furnace at the Portsmouth works of the Wheeling Steel Corporation.

The new system, engineers said, will add at least 10 per cent to the furnace's productive capacity.

"Increased production expected with the equipment, if installed universally, could add the equivalent of 20 new plant furnaces to the nation's steel-making capacity," said Norman Weinstein, inventor of the system and chief engineer for the Trane Company of La Crosse, Wis.

"If the equipment works the way we expect, the Purdue graduate continued, "it could be installed comparatively cheaply on other blast furnaces increasing output of iron without the tremendous cost in money, vital materials and time needed for building additional furnaces."

The new device squeezes excess moisture from the air which is blown into the blast furnace during the reduction of iron ore into pure iron.

GALION BIRTHS

GALION — Mr. and Mrs. L. Buyer of Caledonia, are the parents of a son born at the Galion City hospital Friday.

A daughter was born at the Galion City hospital Friday to Mr. and Mrs. Chester Veger.

Editor's Note: Below is a list of questions and answers compiled by the navy department as a source for information for navy recruits in conjunction with the current recruiting drive in Mansfield and the Richland county area.)

Q. What happens if a sailor in the U. S. navy gets sick?

A. There is a dispensary at every station manned by medical officers who give complete and efficient aid to anyone who is feeling ill.

Q. Is there any insurance available to sailors in the United States navy?

A. Yes, government insurance policies up to $10,000 are available to enlisted men.

Q. How does the U. S. navy and the naval reserve decide what type of work a recruit is best fitted for?

A. Before being assigned to duties, recruits are given the O'Rourke classification test which reveals their individual talents.

Q. Who are the staff officers in the U. S. navy?

A. There are four staff officer corps in the navy. They are: medical officers, dental officers, supply officers and chaplain.

Q. Is there such a thing as shore duty in the navy?

A. Yes, but in most instances men are not assigned to shore duty unless they have been in the service for six years.

Q. What is the "Medal of Honor" that is given to sailors in the U. S. navy?

A. It is the highest individual award an enlisted man can receive. It is awarded by the president of the United States to the man who, in action involving actual conflict with the enemy, distinguishes himself conspicuously by gallantry and intrepidity at the risk of his own life.

Q. If I have some specialized training must I serve as an apprentice seaman if I enlist in the U. S. naval reserve?

A. No. Any man with previous specialized training will be enlisted in a special naval reserve class and will receive petty officer's rating and pay.

Q. Do seamen in the U. S. naval reserve receive the same pay as the seamen in the regular navy?

A. Yes, the men in the naval reserve receive the same pay, food, entertainment, free medical and dental care, have the same opportunities for advancement and for training in skilled jobs as the seamen in the regular navy.

Q. Does the sailor in the U. S. naval reserve wear a different uniform from that worn by regular navy sailors?

A. No, there is no difference in the uniform worn by the naval reservists and that worn by the regular navy seamen.

Q. What are P. T. boats?

A. P. T. designates the new type motor torpedo boats. These boats are capable of speeds in excess of 50 miles per hour and carry two or more torpedo tubes, depth charges, smoke-screen apparatus, and rapid fire anti-aircraft guns. These boats have not yet been incorporated into the fighting fleet in any great number.

EXPECT LARGER REGISTRATION IN SHELBY SCHOOLS THIS FALL

SHELBY — Some 1,550 pupils will be enrolled in Shelby high school this term, making one of the largest registrations in the history of the school, O. M. Schaaf, acting superintendent - principal, disclosed today.

Although the definite number will not be determined until Tuesday when school opens here, Schaaf said that he expected the enrollment to be well over last year's because of the many new pupils moving into the city.

The pupils are to report at their respective buildings at 1 p. m. Tuesday, while the faculty will hold an assembly meeting at 8:30 a. m.

High school pupils will meet in the auditorium. Each high school pupil is asked by Schaaf to bring a regular high school combination lock or 65 cents to purchase one. Lockers will be assigned before school is dismissed Tuesday.

The regular class schedule will begin Wednesday, Sept. 9. The tardy bell will ring at 8:30 a. m., elementary dismissal will be 3:30 p. m., while the high school classes will close at 3:45 p. m.

Why We Invite Advance Arrangements

Some people may think it strange that advance arrangements should be made for a funeral, but it is far from a new idea. There is no time to deliberate when arrangements must be made after a death has occurred.

LIEUT. AND MRS. HOFFMAN

On Aug. 29 Miss Virginia M. Stookey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph E. Stookey, Ashland, and Lieut. James H. Hoffman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hoffman, 75 Brinkerhoff avenue, were wed in the Park Street Brethren church at Ashland. The couple are now residing in Philadelphia, Pa., where Lieut. Hoffman is stationed with the coast artillery.

Arthur W. Zerby Honored at Party

Sixteen friends of Arthur W. Zerby, jr., gathered at his home on Home road for a farewell party and covered-dish dinner recently before he left on Sept. 3 to enter military service.

Dinner was served at a long table decorated with red, white and blue appointments and centered with a cake baked in the form of a V. At the close of dinner, the evening was spent playing cards. The guests presented Mr. Zerby with a monogrammed cigaret case, lighter and other miscellaneous gifts.

Pitfalls of Love

(A sequel to Marriage Meddlers)
By ADELE GARRISON

"That wouldn't be so good, I can see," Mary acknowledged. Then she raised her hands high in the air and brought them down clenched into fists.

"Honestly, Auntie Madge," she said explosively, "it seems to me that if I have to go on being sweet and glamorous to Steve for another five minutes, anywhere, I'll go completely berserk and wipe the smug smirk off his pan so hard he'll never grin again."

"If the act wouldn't have such serious consequences, I'd enjoy seeing you do it," I told her.

She stared at me an instant, resentment flashing from her eyes. Then, as I had hoped, her sense of humor came to the rescue.

"It would be a good stunt," she admitted, and her lilting laughter again assured me that her mercurial spirits had overcome her rebellion against the final dinner dates with Steve which my father had demanded.

With Noel's acquiescence in my father's dictum also secured, I felt entitled to a long breath of relief and temporary respite from worry, although I couldn't forget Noel's theatrical threat against Redfield.

Mary put it more extravagantly a moment later when she threw her arms wide to an imaginary audience, then turned and pointed to me.

"Give this little girl a great big hand!" she intoned. "She has met and conquered the enemy on every front, and now has the situation well in hand."

Then, with one of her lightning changes of mood, her buoyancy fled, and her next question was put in flat, monotonous tones.

"How long do you think it will be before Grandpa Spencer comes to talk to me?"

"Not very long," I told her encouragingly. "Indeed," as a knock sounded on the door, "he is coming in now."

"Well!" my father said imperatively, "have you talked with Noel? What is his reaction?"

I told him briefly, and he turned to Mary.

"When you next see Steve," he said, smiling, "which probably will be tomorrow night—the surgeon thinks he'd better not appear tonight—try to make him believe that Noel's jealous anger alone was to blame for his accident, and sympathize with him as much as you can. Now go over to your own apartment and assure your husband once more that very soon you can dismiss Redfield from your lives forever."

Milwaukee Bride

MRS. ISHAM

Bride of Sept. 5 from Milwaukee, Wis., was the former Miss Ruth W. Wittenberg, who exchanged vows with William Valmore Isham in the St. Luke's Lutheran church. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Isham, Pittsburgh, Pa., and his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Valmore, reside here. After Sept. 10, the couple will make their home at 152 West First street.

HOROSCOPE

FOR TUESDAY, SEPT. 8.

The quick and decisive grasp of opportunities for important progress will do much toward placing all afairs on an expansive, productive and sound basis for future returns and fulfilled ambitions. Keen mental insigh, backed up by clever, energetic and practical moves should push things toward definite and desirable goals. Business, speculation, literary work, travel, agencies and friendly financial settlements and agreements are in a highly-stimulated astral aspect.

Those whose birthday it is should be in line for a year of definite and enduring good fortune and achievements if they will move quickly and energetically to take advantage of excellent opportunities. The mind should be active, shrewd and clever and the energies and forces under high stimuli for accomplishment and real progress. Travel, change, speculation, dealings with agencies, superiors, those in power and position, should flourish.

A child born on this day should have great versatility, creative ability, mental and physical energy and resourcefulness. Its social and affectional qualities assure it success and happiness.

THOSE 'WACCY' HATS

Topped with a "Waccy", the junior miss will be wearing a hat similar to her big sisters in the Army. One hat company has selected as a junior style the hat which is being worn by the WAACS as their field hat for the fatigue uniform.

Mrs. Benninghoff To Be Sponsored By Church Group

Well known for her interesting book reviews in Mansfield as well as in Cleveland, where she resides, Mrs. William E. Benninghoff again will be presented in a series of reviews sponsored by the Women's Association of the First Congregational church. She has been enthusiastically received on several previous occasions.

Announcement is made by Mrs. E. C. Flory, chairman of the ways and means committee, of the three dates on which Mrs. Benninghoff will appear here. They are Oct. 2, Nov. 6 and Dec. 4. All of the reviews will be presented in the auditorium of the First Presbyterian church. The dates are being announced now so that the various organizations can avoid conflicts.

Church Women Plan Luncheon

The Women's Association and the Pilgrim Guild of the First Congregational church will open the parish house for the year's activities with a one o'clock luncheon on Thursday. Mrs. Rex Averill is in charge of arrangements for the luncheon.

An interesting program has been planned by the committee. In previous years, the women of the church have opened the season with a social event in October. Reservations for Thursday's luncheon can be made by calling the parish house.

Honor Mrs. Swanger At Surprise Shower

A miscellaneous surprise shower was held recently by Mrs. Frank Them, 285 First avenue, honoring Mrs. Howard Swanger, nee Anna Them. Prizes for the pinochle and hearts games won by Mrs. Mary Zivkov, Cleveland, Mrs. Kenneth Russell, Lucas, and Mrs. Swanger, were presented to the honoree.

Fourteen guests were served luncheon at small tables decorated in Army Air Corps colors and garden flowers.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

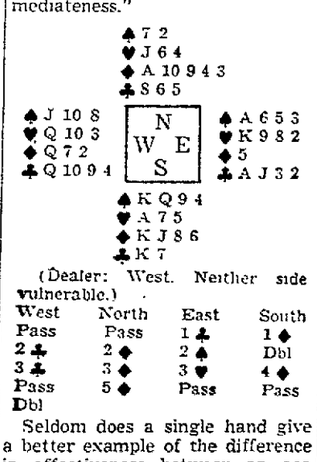
BY

Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

"IMMEDIATENESS" COUNTS

FOR GENERAL purposes the combination of the king and queen in a particular suit is more valuable than the ace, though they are usually ranked alike in most high card tables. This is more or less obvious, since a goodly percentage of the time—definitely more than half of the time—the holder of the combinations takes two tricks with it. There is one value, however, in the ace which is not possessed by the king-queen. That is its ability to take the first trick in the suit, or what might be called its "immediateness."



(Dealer: West. Neither side vulnerable.)

West	North	East	South
Pass	Pass	1 ♣	1 ♦
2 ♣	2 ♦	2 ♠	Dbl
3 ♣	3 ♦	3 ♥	4 ♦
Pass	5 ♦	Pass	Pass
Dbl

Seldom does a single hand give a better example of the difference in effectiveness between an ace and a king-queen. After rather odd bidding, which got South definitely too high, he made his contract because of the special properties of those two entities.

West did not like to under-lead one of his queens, so opened the spade J. When East played the A, the K and Q immediately became two trick-takers. East switched to the heart 2, and right there gave a chance to show the value of the "immediateness" held by that A. South used it to take the trick, finessed the diamond 9, scored the diamond A and K, cashed the spade K and Q for one heart discard and the surprisingly established 9 for another, ruffed the heart 5 with the diamond 4 and led the club 5. East got that with the A and returned the club 2 to the K. The heart 7 was then ruffed by the diamond 10, and the final trick was the club 8 ruffed by the diamond J.

If South had held the heart K-Q instead of the A, he would have held more potential trick-taking strength in the suit, but would have been set by the heart lead to the second trick, whereas the A made his contract a sure thing after the spade lead. With a heart lead at the start the contract could be beaten two tricks, but that is not the point under discussion.

AFTER residing in San Antonio, Tex., for the past six months, Mrs. Walter E. Whiteside, the former Elizabeth Harrah Hughes, has returned to this city for an indefinite stay with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. H. Harrah, 83 Rowland avenue. Her husband, who is an aviation cadet at Randolph Field, Tex., will arrive at the end of the month to spend a furlough here.

Shower Honors Pauline Miller, Sept. 20 Bride

Mrs. William Miller was hostess for a "pot 'n' pan" shower given Friday evening in honor of Miss Pauline Miller, bride-elect of Vincent Kennedy. Miss Miller was recipient of many lovely gifts.

Games were the diversion of the evening. Prizes were won by the Misses Genevieve Buzenski, and Mary Rowan, Mrs. Frances Miller and Mrs. Doris Miller. Each presented her award to the honoree.

The open church wedding is to be an event of Sept. 20 at the First Church of the Brethren in Lincoln Heights.

Galion Girl Weds Cleveland Soldier

Announcement has been made of the marriage of Miss Jeannette Nagelbush, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. I. Nagelbush, Hosford road, to Corp. Sol Levine, son of Mrs. Jenny Levine, of Cleveland Heights. The ceremony, which took place Sept. 2 at the home of the bridegroom, was performed by Rabbi Herman Kohn of the Cleveland Heights Temple.

For her wedding the bride chose a brown dressmakers suit with mink trimming. She wore pale blue accessories and a corsage of white orchids. Attending the bride was her sister, Dorothy, who wore a yellow flannel suit with black accessories. The brother of the bridegroom, Danny Levine, was best man. Only the immediate families were in attendance at the ceremony.

Dinner was served to the wedding party at Fenway Hall following the ceremony. The couple then left for New Orleans, where Corp. Levine is stationed at an air base.

Read This Message From
Frend C. Boals,
Mansfield Traffic Commissioner
Mansfielders:

Drivers, be careful! Little children don't always stop to think before running into the street. With school starting September 9th, added caution is extremely necessary. Be alert for children on streets and intersections. Go slowly in school zones. Watch for and observe School Patrol traffic directions. Students, work with your school patrol. Cross streets only at designated intersections. Older children can always help the younger ones. Let's be careful.

YOU

ARE RESPONSIBLE FOR HIM

IF you haven't seen to it that your car is in good condition, with brakes, lights, and steering all functioning perfectly.

IF you don't drive slowly enough to bring your car to a complete stop within 2 feet in a school zone, or if you disobey any warning or traffic signs or signals or the directions of the schoolboy safety patrol.

IF you do not at all times do your duty as a citizen by respecting the rights of others, whether they are fellow drivers or unsuspecting children, and by safeguarding those rights as you would safeguard your own.

CHAPTER XVIII

He was so gay and excited and mysterious that she let him play the game his own way, holding back her questions as he told his story backward.

"Amy, do you want to see how a successful artist looks?" He stopped and posed, hand on his chest, chin high. "Mrs. Ainslee has bought a picture. Not a portrait. She's bought a picture I painted—because she liked it! That and no other reason! It's one I wanted to paint—the river and the houseboat—the picture you and I saw on this spot weeks ago."

"Paul—I'm so glad—"

He interrupted her. "What do you think she's paying me?"

"I wouldn't dare even to guess."

"Eight thousand dollars! Eight thousand bucks. Eight thousand!"

"Paul," she said again, this time in awe.

"Do you realize what that means?" He was serious now. "I owe Marcia seven thousand dollars. That leaves me a thousand—us, I mean."

"Us," she echoed.

"Hurry up. I'll race you to the trees."

They ran, stumbling and laughing down the hill. They floundered through leaves in the hollow and up the steps to the porch on the ledge back of the third story.

* * *

Inside the studio he unhooked her parka hood, hung it up and, kneeling, pulled off her boots. He put fresh sticks of wood in the pot-bellied iron stove and it glowed red. Outside the windows the sky was red now. And through a filagree of branches the river gleamed silver. Each window framed a picture, and the pictures hanging on the walls inside were like windows — windows opening upon exotic Cuban scenes, windows looking out into salty New England harbors, windows that revealed Paris rooftops. And their picture, the one that had given them their future, stood on the easel, a palate splashed with orange and blues and yellows on the table beside it.

"Do you think you'll like being an artist's wife?" he asked. "Being a bit poor."

"Poor!" she scoffed. "We'll have a million dollars worth of masterpieces."

"We're packing the masterpieces and taking them to the Kentucky hills immediately," he informed her. "Can you have your things packed by Saturday?"

"Maybe I ought to finish my week.

"That's ridiculous," he scolded. "You don't have to finish your week. You're getting a duty complex. Daphne doesn't need you. Look at the way Frani won her over yesterday. They'll get along better without you now."

"You're right," she agreed. "It looks like a 'they-lived-happily-ever-after' all around. Where is our mountain studio?"

"I haven't the slightest idea."

They laughed at that, feeling deliciously harum-scarum. But Paul did have a definite plan. He had a friend in the army, he explained, who had offered them his studio cabin until they could find one or inveigle the mountaineers into building one for them. It was down in the southeastern part of Kentucky, a night's ride by train, a half day's ride by mule stage and three hours by horseback. Water from a mountain spring had been piped into it. It had a stone fireplace, and built-in bookcases.

"I have some gorgeous rough-colored fabrics that I bought in Rumania," Amy declared. "They'll be lovely in a cabin. And I have copper things. I must write Cousin Margaret to send them. What's our address?"

"Maggard Center. There's a mission school there and a store. I believe we're three miles up the creek from that."

"With no neighbors but trees—looking in at the windows," she quoted gaily. Then suddenly she was serious. "What are you telling Marcia?"

"The straight truth. The quicker it's over the better. In these times one can't wait for anything. My draft number may come up any time." He scowled into the fire. "I feel like a bum, though, marrying you when I may have to leave you."

"Why?" she asked belligerently.

"I might be gone two or three years. Who'd take care of you?"

"Who'd take care of me if you didn't marry me? If I have to take care of myself I can do it more happily if I have at least a memory to hang on to . . . You," she said fiercely against his shoulder, "You have no right to rob me of my memories."

"I'll want memories too," he said huskily. And then, dismissing it all quickly, he declared, "We may never be involved in war anyway. Come on, let's set the dinner table."

"I mustn't stay."

He grabbed her, tousling the smooth brown hair. "Listen, my pint-sized beauty! I could tie you down with one hand. And I say you're going to stay. Anyway I've bought the things—down town today after Mrs. Ainslee gave me my check. Sirloin steak, canned mushroom soup, tomatoes, rye bread and—good lord, I forgot the butter! But who needs butter?"

They pan-broiled the steak in two installments because his skillet was too small to hold it all. They swept a litter of twisted paint tubes from a small table and spread it with newspapers. There were only two plates so they piled the tomatoes on the table.

"Such a lot of fun for nothing," Amy chanted as she danced about clearing things up. "I feel as if we were the only people in the whole world . . . Look there's a new moon shining in at us. I've seen it over my left shoulder though. Bad luck in love."

"No—good luck," he said, drawing her to him.

A cold blast of air swept through the studio. Then the door slammed and there was Frani. She looked as though she had been crying and she said, "Paul, Oh, Paul. I want to—"

Then she saw Amy in Paul's arms and her face went white with fury.

Frani glared at them. Amy slipped from Paul's arms and stood away from him, but he moved toward her with an air of protection.

Frani said, in a voice curiously thick as though she might have been crying, "I came to see my brother. I wanted some advice. And I find . . . Oh, damn!"

She turned suddenly and ran out into the night.

As the door slammed behind her Amy started toward it, but Paul drew her back. "Let her go," he said. "There was no excuse for her looking at us like that!"

"No," Amy admitted, "but . . . I believe I want to go back to the house now."

They spoke seldom as they trudged across the frozen hilltop. When they came around to the front door of the big house, Paul said, "I'll go in with you in case Frani should be around."

Margaret, the big second maid, met them in the hall, her broad kind face heavy with trouble.

"It's awful, isn't it?" she greeted them.

Then Hanver, the butler, came up behind her, shaking his head slowly. "It's hard to believe it, isn't it, Mr. Bevan?"

"To believe what?" Paul said.

"The Japanese have bombed Hawaii," Hanver told them.

Amy and Paul stood there speechless.

A radio voice coming from Guy's study announced: "Japan today declared war on the United States. And an electrified nation united for the terrific struggle ahead. President Roosevelt is expected to ask congress for a declaration of war tomorrow. . . ."

Paul and Amy entered the study then. Guy was there. So was Frani. Frani looked sullen and stormy, but she was listening intently.

Guy said, "The Japanese bombed Pearl Harbor this morning"

Paul said, "We didn't know. We've been down at my studio all day."

Impatiently Guy motioned for them to sit down. Amy felt this thing could not be true. Surely in a moment they would awake from this nightmare and she would merely be coming into the house to put Daphne to bed as usual.

"Japanese planes bombed Pearl Harbor and Hickam Field, Hawaii, without warning . . . Three hundred and fifty soldiers reported dead . . . Numerous casualties at other points of attack." Then music. Then "We shall interrupt all programs as new reports come in . . . stand by."

They stood by, straining their ears for the short sharp sentences that zipped bullet-like through music and laughter. "A new wave of planes coming over . . . Planes over central Luzon, the Philippines . . . Panama Canal zone placed on wartime footing."

They read over and over the newspaper extra that Guy had brought home.

"Well, we've been expecting this war for years, but not this treachery," Guy said. "They've dragged us into it. We'll fight until the end."

Paul, usually so animated, so eager to express himself, sat with his hands clasped between his knees and scowled.

At length he rose. "It's midnight. I'm going back to the studio. Come to the door with me Amy."

In the glass-enclosed vestibule, with the moon that had laughed with them so gaily in the studio now seeming to peer at them coldly from behind scudding clouds, he said, "I'm going to volunteer, Amy."

Amy shivered, then smiled and said, "Yes."

"It won't make any difference in our plans."

"No."

It seemed as simple as that, then. He would see Marcia as soon as she returned from Louisville. Amy was set upon his settling things with Marcia first. It seemed fairer, she insisted—not so sneaky. But as soon as he had talked with Marcia they would announce their plans to the family and leave for the mountain cabin. Time was short now. They would have two weeks together in the cabin, then they would return and Paul would enlist.

Yes, it all seemed simple. Amy began packing immediately—the red ski suit, her riding breeches, warm tailored dresses, underthings delicate pink as the inside of a shell, the turquoise-trimmed gold negligee—not appropriate for a log cabin, but Paul would love it!

She kept her strapped suitcases in her closet and the door locked so that Frani would not see them.

Queer, she thought, that in the face of world-shaking events, she should go on so calmly planning her own small affairs. No, not queer, either. Large affairs were made up of small affairs. Small affairs must go on smoothly if large affairs were to move forward.

But small affairs were not going on smoothly. Monday passed . . . Tuesday . . . Wednesday . . . and Marcia had not returned from Louisville. Thursday night Paul came to Amy jubilantly.

"It's set at last! Frani asked me point blank just now if I was going to enlist. I said I was and she asked me if I'd told Marcia. She was rather nasty about it. But I told her I was waiting for Marcia to come home. She said Marcia's coming late tonight. I'll see her in the morning. And then—then we'll be out of the mess! All ready?"

She nodded.

Amy rose before dawn to examine her suitcases again and to tuck in a few last minute articles. Silly—but doing this gave you a flurried feeling that this really was your wedding day.

She couldn't go back to bed. She put on a bathrobe and sat by the window watching the stars fade in the pale morning sky and the rosy light creep along the great grey branches of the beech trees.

Later she saw a car going out the gate—a big maroon affair resplendent with chromium. Frani's! It stopped just outside the estate and she saw Frani lean out and beackon someone. It was—Paul. From their violent gestures she judged they were arguing. Now, he was climbing into Frani's car.

But why be alarmed? Why shouldn't he? He could hardly help it if Frani insisted. But where would Frani be going so early? And how was Paul to leave her in order to see Marcia?

Silly to be apprehensive, she told herself. Yet all morning she worried. When noon came and there was no word from Paul she was terrified. At 2 o'clock the branch telephone in the nursery at last rang. She was so weak with relief that the receiver jiggled in her hand.

The voice that came over the wire was not Paul's. It was Marcia's. Marcia's voice singing with happiness. "Amy, oh Amy! I called you because I wanted to tell you before it came out in the paper. Or have you seen the paper?"

"No."

"Paul and I are announcing our engagement."

"You—what!"

"Announcing our engagement. I wanted you to know before the general public read about it. It's to be in this afternoon."

"No!" Amy heard her own voice strange and shrill and somehow apart from her.

"I don't wonder you're surprised," Marcia caroled. "I am myself. You know Paul's been putting off our marriage. But now he's going to enlist . . . and he wanted to hurry things up . . . and—oh, I'm incoherent! But anyway he went down to the newspaper office this morning and gave them the announcement. I wouldn't have known anything about it if Frani hadn't called me. She telephoned me down in Louisville last night that I'd better hurry home. I hadn't any idea what she meant. But she called me again this morning after Paul went to the papers."

"Not this morning!"

It must have been that anguish in Amy's voice did not carry over the wire for Marcia laughed. "I know it sounds crazy. No one but Paul would do that sort of thing. But you know how impulsive he is! And now, darling Amy, I have to hurry to do a million and one things. So gooy-bye!"

Going downstairs to the front door Amy was weak and wobbly as though she had suffered a long illness. What if someone else had picked up the paper first. No, it was lying on the steps, tightly rolled and damp. She took it into the study. She didn't want anyone to see her open it.

She glanced over the front page, war headlines and a cartoon, and fumbled through to the society pages. There they were, two double column pictures of Paul and Marcia—the ones that had hung in that very room. She raised her eyes to the empty space on the wall above the desk. Then she turned back to the dancing, blurred line of print under the pictures:

"Engagement is announced."

Then Paul arrived. The paper fluttered to the floor. He put his arm around her and said, "Darling, you're shaking. And your hands are cold."

THEATERS

Intriguing Story.

A closely guarded secret of the past lends suspense to the actions of three sisters in the Ohio attraction, "The Gay Sisters," based on a best-selling novel by Stephen Longstreet. Figuring in the secret is a civil engineer whose ambition is to own the property belonging to the trio. An old brownstone mansion that is slipping into decay furnishes the locale where Barbara Stanwyck, Geraldine Fitzgerald and Nancy Coleman live as the sisters. George Brent portrays the engineer and the cast includes Gig Young, a newcomer with a future.

Sabotage Plot.

Jap saboteurs eager to cripple or destroy the Panama Canal are active in Humphrey Bogart's starring picture, "Across The Pacific," showing at the Madison. Bogart plays a discharged army captain from whom the enemy agents expect to extract vital information. Sydney Greenstreet and Mary Astor appear as the agents and the cast includes Monte Blue and Keye Luke. "Calling Dr. Gillespie," is the second attraction. Lionel Barrymore plays the lead.

Comedy With Music.

Tommy Dorsey's band, Eleanor Powell, Red Skelton and Bert Lahr turn "Ship Ahoy," the Ritz headliner, into a lively show. The light plot deals with a young dancer, played by Miss Powell, who is caught in the schemes of enemy agents. She taps out a message in Morse code and otherwise manages to extricate herself. Skelton appears as the dancer's sweetheart and the cast includes William Post, jr. A Henry Aldrich feature, "Henry and Dizzy," with Jimmy Lydon, shares the bill.

Gripping Story.

Nazi-killers learn that Canadians don't scare in the highly charged film drama, "The Invaders," showing at the Park. The picture follows the course taken by a small band of invaders when their submarine sinks in the Hudson Bay country and shows the ruthless methods they use to escape from one place to another. Laurence Olivier, Leslie Howard and Raymond Massey head the cast. "Sweetheart of the Fleet," with Joan Davis is the second film.

Champions Crowned In Three Divisions of Net Tourney

Sport Podge by REX HESS

"What do you think about the high school's boosting of admission to football games from 50 cents to 65 cents?"

That is a query that has been put to me several times by persons who were not complaining about the boost, but who wondered how the public would take it.

And I think that once the public realizes that the boost represents taxes which it didn't have to pay a year ago, and that the taxes go to help the war effort, that the public will not kick very strenuously.

* * *

The season ticket offer of six games for $5.75 is still a very fair proposition any way you look at it when you consider that the six games include such teams as Massillon, Elyria, Niles, Portsmouth, Toledo Woodward and Akron West.

Many a Mansfielder who went to Massillon last fall without a ticket, and didn't get in to the game, would have been glad to pay that sum for that one game.

And who am I to chirp? Alas, I gotta go, I gotta pass.

Up at Canton, McKinley is charging $5.50 for seven home games, and the McKinley gridmenu can't be any better in the matter of visiting teams than the Mansfield home schedule.

Also it's reported that the seasonal ticket sale at McKinley is not going nearly as fast as usual, and this may be because the McKinley-Massillon game is at Massillon this year. And the fact that Massillon plays at Mansfield this year will sell a lot of season tickets here. Those Massillons are still the biggest attraction in the state.

McKinley officials are not worried about the slow sale of season tickets. They believe single game revenue will be as high as ever.

Here's the way they dope it out: A lot of guys who ordinarily would be coming forward with their $5.50 for season ducats, don't know this year whether or not they'll be on hand to see the games, since they may be in the army, or in war work out of town, or too darn busy right at home.

But if they're around, they'll be at the games.

And here in Mansfield it won't be the price that will sell or fail to sell tickets. It will be the showing made by the 1942 Tygers, and the class of the opposition, as always.

Big Ten Squads Open Practice

CHICAGO —(AP)— The Western conference went all out for football today as Minnesota, Ohio State, Illinois, Northwestern and Michigan opened practices.

Indiana, Purdue, Wisconsin and Iowa started last week.

With all nine conference members in action, the total number of football men reporting reached the 500 mark and included 146 lettermen.

The schools began drills early this season to meet unusually large schedules and early starting dates. Iowa and Wisconsin lead off Sept. 19, against Washington university and Camp Grant, Ill., respectively. All teams will be in action on Sept. 26.

* * *

The schedules include games with 14 different non-conference schools, plus scattering dates with Great Lakes, Camp Grant, Fort Knox, Ky., Camp Shelby, Miss., and the Iowa City Cadets.

Michigan State will be the last major college in the region to open drills. Coach Charles Bachman expects 47 players, including 17 lettermen, to report Wednesday. Coach Tom Stidham greeted 48 men at Marquette Saturday and Notre Dame began practices early last week.

COON HOUNDS RACE IN KENTON MEET

KENTON —(AP)— Coon hounds raced today in the final heats of the 16th annual Leafy Oak field trials.

On the basis of first-day performance, Gold Coin, a black and white hound owned by Dale Colline of Laurel, Ill., appeared a dog worth watching. He outshone 200 other dogs in yesterday's preliminaries, covering his trail and treeing with speed better than any other.

Long John Mize Aids Cardinals

Clouts Home Run To Cut Brooklyn Lead.

By AUSTIN BEALMEAR
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

WHEN the St. Louis Cardinals peddled Johnny Mize to the New York Giants last winter they bid goodbye to the man who might have batted them into the National league pennant, but Long John is helping his former buddies all he can from his present post at the Polo Grounds.

* * *

Although the Cards are pretty busy, trying to catch the Brooklyn Dodgers, they should take time out for at least a vote of thanks to Mize and another Giant slugger, big Babe Young.

* * *

Through the courtesy of this pulverizing pair, the Cardinals found themselves only two and a half games behind the league leading Dodgers today, with three weeks of play remaining.

Young was the first to endear himself in the hearts of the Cards rocked the Dodgers in the opener and all their followers by smashing a grand slam homer which of a three-game series Saturday.

The Brooks squared the series by taking the first game of yesterday's doubleheader, 6-2, and were leading in the nightcap, 2-1, when Mize came up with two men on base and parked the ball on the roof of the right field stands to give the Polo Grounders the verdict, 4-2.

Another ex-Cardinal, Southpaw Tom Sunkel, had a hand in the Dodgers' downfall for he held them to five hits in outpitching Kirby Higbe, but it was Lefty Max Macon, once a Red Bird himself, who pitched the Dodgers to victory in the opener with a five-hit job.

Meanwhile, the Cardinals kept their threat alive by crushing the Cincinnati Reds, 10-2, as Mort Cooper hurled seven-hit ball for his 19th triumph of the season. Slats Marion, Terry Moore and Johnny Hopp led the 11-hit attack on three Redleg moundsmen.

* * *

Those were the most important developments in the pennant struggle but there was plenty of action elsewhere, what with the New York Yankees scoring 26 runs, the Pittsburgh Pirates hanging up a double shutout and the Boston Braves pulling off the season's third triple play.

All teams switch opponents for today's full slate of holiday double-headers, with Boston promising to furnish its share of the excitement. There the Dodgers move in against the Braves, who have rested their two best pitchers, Jim Tobin and Al Javery, for the occasion.

Hank Gornicki and Luke Hamlin collaborated in blanking the Chicago Cubs for the Pirates. Gornicki tossed a four-hitter to take the opener, 6-0, and Hamlin yielded only seven blows for a 5-0 triumph in the afterpiece.

The Braves treated Philadelphia fans to their first triple play in 14 years, but downed the Phils, 13-3 and 7-3, extending the tailenders' losing streak to 11 games.

At Washington, the New York Yankees stretched their American league lead to eight and a half games by walloping the Senators, 11-9 and 15-2, while the second place Boston Red Sox were squeezing past the Philadelphia Athletics, 8-7, in a lone contest.

Red Ruffing chalked up his 13th pitching victory of the season and the 257th of his career in the first game.

Ruffing moved into a tie with Ted Lyons for the lead in lifetime pitching victories. A cold kept Lyons from taking his weekly turn with the Chicago White Sox and the Detroit Tigers blanked them, 2-0, on the five-hit pitching of Tommy Bridges.

Ted Williams' eighth-inning home run, his 30th of the year, was the margin of victory for the Red Sox.

The Cleveland Indians finally stopped the St. Louis Browns, 6-5, in the second game of their third double bill in three days after the Brownies had made it five in a row with a 3-2 decision in the opener.

HORSE SHOW DRAWS LEADING STABLES

BOWLING GREEN —(AP)— Several stakes valued at $200 each will feature the second annual horse show at nearby Cygnet Labor Day, and some of the midwest's leading stables have entered their top performers.

Net receipts from the event will provide cigarets and candy for Bowling Green servicemen. Among stables entered are those of Elrod, Gillett and Stranahan of Toledo, Sawyer of Cincinnati, Claypool of Chillicothe, and Hedden of Bowling Green State university. George Gwinn of Kentucky and William Berry of Pennsylvania will judge the 24 classes, starting at 1 p. m.

HOSTAK BOOKED

SEATTLE —(AP)— Al Hostak, twice middleweight boxing champion of the world who is attempting a comeback, will meet Harry (Kid) Matthews of Emmett, Idaho, in a 10-round bout September 29.

BLEACHERITE GIVES SERVICES GRATIS

MOBILE, Ala. —(AP)— In a tight Mobile - Jackson playoff game with runners on bases, a bleacher fan held up play while he strode out to pitcher's box to advise the Jackson hurler to throw the next batter "a low one."

Commenting on the incident, Pat Moulton, league prexy and Mobile Press sports editor, said, "now I've seen everything!"

Tribe Finally Wins a Game

Splits Double Header With St. Louis Browns.

CHICAGO— (AP) —Reeling from five defeats in their past six games, the Cleveland Indians today take on the Chicago White Sox in a double header—the Tribe's fourth twin bill in as many days.

The St. Louis Browns handed Cleveland its fifth straight defeat in yesterday's opener, 3-2, then the Indians came back in the nightcap to salvage one game out of the series, 6-5. The split left the Tribe four and a half games behind the Browns, who virtually sewed up third place.

Pitcher Jim Bagby, instead of notching his 16th victory, helped the Browns win the first contest.

With runners on second and first and one out in the ninth, Harlond Clift smashed the ball back at Bagby who threw to center field trying for a double play. George Caster, St. Louis relief pitcher, scored from second, and got credit for the victory.

Cleveland got its first run in the initial inning when, with one down, Roy Weatherly tripled and crossed the plate on Ken Keltner's single. The Indians' only other tally in the opener was compounded on singles by Oris Hockett and Keltner and Jeff Heath's double in the seventh.

* * *

The Tribe's comeback in the nightcap started with Les Fleming's 13th homer of the season after Heath had doubled in the fourth. In the next stanza, four successive Indian singles followed by Manager Lou Boudreau's long fly were good for three more runs, and the Tribe got its winning tally in the sixth with Oscar Grime's single and a two-bagger by Otto Denning. Mel Harder was the winner, although he gave way in the ninth to Chubby Dean and Vernon Kennedy.

* * *

Al Milnar and Tom Ferrick were chosen to work on the mound for the Indians today against Edgar Smith and Thornton Lee.

BLOZIS ENTERS NAVY

NEW YORK —(AP)— Al Blozis, towering shot putter at Georgetown whose size kept him out of the armed services, said today he had been accepted by the navy. While awaiting his call, he will attempt to tuck his 6-foot, 6-inch frame and his 200-odd pounds into a New York Giant football uniform.

Western Army Defeats Cards

Kimbrough Stars In 16-10 Win Over Pros

By LOUDON KELLY

DENVER—(AP)—The second lieutenant said to the major he was sorry, sir, but he just couldn't be kept out of things, so the Western Army All-Stars boasted their first football victory today—16-10 over the Chicago Cardinals.

* * *

The second lieutenant, of course, is John Kimbrough, and what he did to the Cardinals yesterday was plenty — two touchdowns, one on a roaring run of 95 yards with a kickoff.

There was a rueful but admiring shadow of a smile on the lean face of Major Wallace Wade, the soldier's coach. Kimbrough ought not to have played at all with that sore side of his, but he's a fellow you just can't keep out of the lineup."

Even with the fresh bumps he's picked up, the former all-America fullback from Texas A. & M. will be just as insistent probably about playing against the Detroit Lions Wednesday night at Detroit, where the All-Stars arrive tomorrow morning.

It was a gay, glittering football performance the pros and the soldiers enacted and it's too bad it wasn't seen by more than the 20,000 who paid $39,500, of which $27,000 goes to army relief.

Big John would be the first to admit that even a spavined sports writer from the lofty pressbox might have made that touchdown gallop, so masterful was the blocking ahead of him, especially the way Pvt. Forrest Ferguson from Florida mowed down the Cardinal safety 20 yards from home.

* * *

This occurred in the first half during which the teams also traded field goals by Bill Daddio, Chicago end, and Pvt. Tony Cemore from Creighton to leave the army on top 9 to 3 at the halftime.

Bud Schwenk, a freshman Cardinal back from Washington (St. Louis), whose passes were always dangerous for the soldiers, whipped a seven-yard pass to end Alton Coppage from Oklahoma for the Chicagoans' only touchdown and Daddio's placekick put them ahead 10 to 9.

They hung on this one-point lead from early in the second half until three minutes before the end when the army linemen ganged up on Schwenk as he cocked his passing arm and made him fumble.

The army went the necessary 42 yards on Kimbrough's long legs. He was hurt on one 12-yard sweep that carried to the Cardinals' four-yard line, but neither that nor the Chicago line could stop him. He went the hard way—through the middle—for the victory points.

Alsab Seeks His Fourth Win In Row

CHICAGO—(AP)— Alsab continues his campaign today for recognition as the three-year-old champion by seeking his fourth straight victory since recovering from a leg splint in the $25,000 Washington Park handicap.

Although Whirlaway will not be present, having ducked the issue like Shut Out did a week ago when Alsab won the American Derby, Mrs. Al Sabath's bargain beauty should find stiff competition in the mile and a quarter run against 13 rivals.

The Chicago's colt's task now is to catch Mrs. Payne Whitney's Pride in money earnings. During the present season Shut Out has run up $236,000 while Alsab has accumulated $159,000.

If all 14 start today, the race will gross $35,300 with the winner netting $27,700. A win for Alsab would bring him within $50,000 of his rival as he moves to New York and Maryland tracks for serious campaigning the remainder of the season.

Louis B. Mayer's Thumbs Up, his stablemate, King's Abbey, and With Regards, Marriage, Alettern and others are figured to make Alsab press for his fourth triumph in a row.

Washington Park will turn its entire profits over to the Army and Navy Relief funds and the USO, and officials expect the Labor Day program to net the agencies more than $100,000.

CHARLESTON LEAD CUT TO TWO GAMES

DAYTON—(AP)—Two games separated the league-leading Charleston Senators and the second-place Dayton Ducks as the Mid-Atlantic League went into its final day today.

* * *

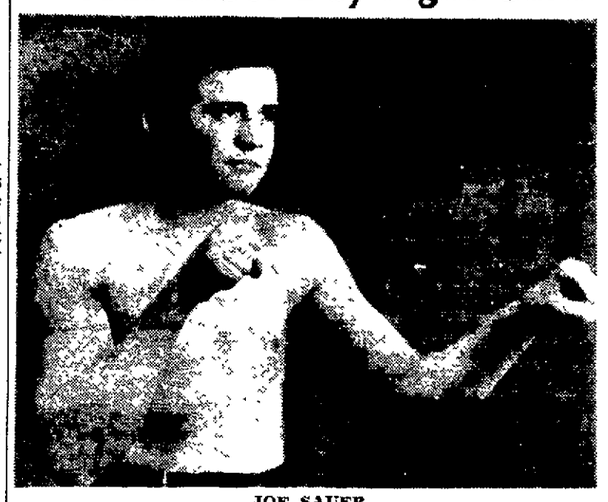
The rip-roaring Ducks picked up two games yesterday by whipping Erie twice, 6-1 and 5-4, while Charleston dropped two games to Canton, 10-3 and 5-4. The results left the unofficial standings thus:

Charleston	74	50	.597
Dayton	73	53	.579

On this basis, Dayton could tie Charleston for the flag should the Ducks repeat yesterday's performance and Charleston lose twice again. The teams meet the same opponents in the last day's doubleheaders.

Springfield defeated cellar-dwelling Zanesville twice, 9 to 3 and 3 to 2. They too meet again today.

Heads Labor Day Fight Card



JOE SAUER

Heading the amateur boxing show this afternoon at the CIO-AFL Labor Day celebration at North Lake park will be Mansfield's 168-pound Joe Sauer, meeting Dick Kerin, former Mt. Vernon high school football star. Four other bouts are on the card which will follow the Mansfield Provident Loan-Cleveland Ranger A. C. softball game, booked at 5 p. m.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

NEW YORK—(Wide World)—Although Alf Vanderbilt is a bos'n's mate in the navy he hasn't entirely dropped out of racing. Down at his Sagamore farm in Maryland there are 15 yearlings which will campaign in his colors next season. . . . Well, isn't it a navy tradition that when a sailor gets a day off he either rents a rowboat or goes horseback riding? . . . Coach Denny Myers of Boston college has worked out his own brand of "toughening up." Each player must lug his own equipment to and from the field and after taking their showers they have to pick up the towels and clean up the locker room.

MONDAY MATINEE

Baltimore grid fans have shown so much interest in the Redskins-Packers exhibition today and the Dodgers-Army All Stars Sept. 16 that the big league magnates are thinking of putting in a regular team there. . . . Because so many big-time fighters are in the services, the next N. B. A. ratings will include a list of "promising novices" . . . Boston scribes say the Red Sox' Tony Lupien may develop into another Hank Greenberg—because he's always trying to improve his play and because he doesn't try to hit bad balls—when Chick Harbert shot a 66 in the recent Michigan open golf tournament he had nothing but threes and fours—and it was his third such card this season.

GOING LIKE SIXTY

When Billy Sixty, veteran Milwaukee golf and bowling writer, was assigned to cover Marquette football this season he tackled the job with plenty of enthusiasm. . . . Phoning Coach Tom Stidham, he said: "I want to cover those practice sessions, Tom. How often do you work out — three times a week?"

SERVICE DEPT.

Coach Tony Hinkle of the Great Lakes Naval Training station football squad isn't satisfied with a backfield of Bruce Smith, Bob Sweiger, Rudy Mucha and Pete Kmetovic. None of them is a quarterback and he hasn't a signal-caller on the squad. . . . Lieut. Bobby Nowell, Georgia blocking back in 1940, is in charge of the Fort Riley (Kas.) platoon in which Joe Louis is a corporal. . . . Although the Lubbock (Tex.) Army Flying school expects to have a football team, it won't get to use two of the school's best players. Tommie Vaughn, 1940 Texas Aggies co-captain, and Pete Layden, who led the Texas Longhorns in upsetting the Aggies that year, can't play because of their duties as aviation cadets. . . Fort Sheridan, Ill., is planning a bigger winter sports program than last year, when more than 30 teams participated in a five months basketball schedule.

A POINT IN QUESTION

Coach Curly Lambeau of the Green Bay Packers likes to tell about the time his club played an exhibition against the St. Louis Gunners. . . . After a touchdown Don Hutson dropped back to boot the extra point but the referee ruled he had missed. . . . The Packers squawked and the ref asked who kicked the ball. . . . "Hutson," some one told him. . . . "You get the point," the official decided. "If Hutson kicked it, it went over."

ENOUGH IS ENOUGH

When big Bill Lewis, the wrestling promoter, visited Richmond recently he carried an enthusiastic report on his "championship" tournament at Los Angeles. . . Someone asked him why such prominent burpers as Jim Londos and the Angel didn't compete. . . . "Why should they be in it?" Lewis asked. "They've already got championships."

Association Battles On

Championship Hinges on Last Games Today.

CHICAGO—(AP)—If you think the Dodgers' 2½-game lead over the Cardinals is close, look at the merry American Association — a minor league with a major claim to one of the tightest pennant struggles in baseball records.

After playing more than 600 games this season, the eight-member circuit ends today with two teams in position to win the flag outright, a third having a chance to tie for it and the whole race teetering on the outcome of a doubleheader.

Kansas City must beat Milwaukee twice to claim the title, and vice versa if Milwaukee wishes to win it. If they split their doubleheader, Columbus must beat Toledo twice to tie Kansas City for the pennant.

In all this beating around, Kansas City holds a slight edge with a .546 percentage. Milwaukee has .544 and Columbus .539. Kansas City could win with two points to spare if it split with Milwaukee and if Columbus split with Toledo.

Ever since mid-season the race has been as close as a shave, with these three clubs staggering in and out of the lead and sometimes splitting fractions to find who holds it. They seldom were three games apart in the past month, while at times only 6½ games separated the seventh place club from first.

Things got terrific last week. Milwaukee, managed by the former Chicago Cub pilot, Charley Grimm, dropped three straight after becoming somewhat dazed when Hal Peck, the league's second best batter, shot off two toes while hunting rats and was lost to the club.

* * *

Columbus also dropped three in a row, leaving the Kansas City Blues sporting a 2½-game lead with four contests to go. But yesterday, the Blues were beaten 7 to 2 and 5 to 4 by Milwaukee while Columbus overcame Toledo 1 to 0—extending the championship showdown to the last day.

Mary Gregoria, Bourns And Wilcox Win Titles

Women's Finals Find Nearly All Games of Three Sets Going Deuce

NEW CHAMPIONS in the News-Journal city tennis tournament today are: Lowell Bourns in men's singles, Mary Gregoria in women's singles, and Norman Wilcox in boys' singles.

They won their titles yesterday before a fair-sized gallery at Maple Lake courts, Bourns defeating his doubles partner, Watty Slabaugh, Mary Gregoria winning over Meredith Fisher, and Wilcox defeating John Schwarz.

Previously Bourns and Slabaugh had tucked the doubles championship away, and Meredith Fisher had won the girls' singles championship from Mary Gregoria, the defending titleholder.

Yesterday's finals matches brought out some fine tennis, and numerous spectacular and hard-fought points were marked down on the score sheet, particularly in the men's and women's championships.

Bourns, who upset the Woodland champion, Gene Rudolph, in semi-finals Saturday, proved master of the courts yesterday as he won over Slabaugh 6-3, 6-3, his fine net play and accurate cross-court placements more than making up for Slabaugh's driving game.

Most closely contested championship of the day was the women's finals, in which the same two players who fought last Sunday for the girls' title, met once more.

* * *

Mary Gregoria came from behind to win the crown from Meredith Fisher, 4-6, 6-4, 6-2. In the first set Meredith got away to a 3-1 lead, but Mary came back to take a 4-3 margin, only to see Meredith run out the string.

* * *

Nearly every game of the three sets went to deuce, not once, but anywhere from four to ten times, and the score in games does not come close to showing how close the battle for points went.

* * *

Tall, left-handed Norman Wilcox owned too much experience and too many guns for John Schwarz in the boys' finals, and there was never a doubt as to the final winner, as Wilcox finished it off 6-0, 6-2.

Frank Parker Upsets Dope

Reaches National Net Finals Without Tune-up.

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK—(AP)—One of tennis' favorite axioms—that no player can win the national championships without having gone through the summer "tournament circuit" —was in danger of taking a licking at Forest Hills today as Frankie Parker and Ted Schroeder jr., met in a five-set struggle for the title.

Pauline Betz of Los Angeles, a senior at Rollins college in Florida, already held the women's championship, having defeated Louise Brough of Beverly Hills, the favorite, 4-6, 6-1, yarn in yesterday's final before 8,000 surprised fans.

Parker was the one gunning for the axiom in today's match. Busy with his new movie job on the west coast, the 27-year-old star passed up all the tournaments until he came east for the big event. Frankie paid his own way, incidentally, the tennis officials evidently figuring that a "retired" tennis player was not likely to draw many paying customers through the gate.

Since getting here, Frankie has confounded almost everybody, including his opponents, and there were a surprising number who expected him to eat Schroeder alive today.

* * *

In five preliminary victories, including his semi-final win over Pancho Segura, top-seeded foreigner, Parker lost only one set and 26 games.

Billy Talbert paired with Lieut. Gardnar Mulloy to win the men's doubles title. They defeated Schroeder and Sidney Wood, jr., 9-7, 7-5, 6-1, in yesterday's final.

WARNS AGAINST WAR WEDDINGS

Lecturer Says Conflict Brings Changes To Married Life.

BOSTON — (U.P.) — War weddings are dangerous, according to Dr. Jean C. Mendenhall, Boston University lecturer on marriage and family relations.

She says this means all war marriages, including those in which soldiers, defense workers or civilians participate.

"War . . . brings great changes into the lives of all of us," she said. "And no matter how much love there may have been they (bridal couples) are more or less strangers."

The war," she contended, only increased the difficulty of breaking down barriers between such couples.

ISLANDERS PURCHASE BONDS

MATANICUS ISLAND, Me. — (U.P.)—The 75 inhabitants of this isolated coastal outpost have purchased more than $7,000 in war bonds.

LEGAL NOTICE

In the Probate Court of Morrow County, Ohio:

No. 4045

Nelson Campbell, Administrator of the Estate of Ray M. Shaffer, deceased, Plaintiff, vs. Icelina Shaffer, et al., Defendants.

Pursuant to an order of the Probate Court of Morrow County, Ohio, I will offer for sale at Public Auction, at 10:00 o'clock, A. M., at the North door of the Courthouse, in Mansfield, Ohio, on Saturday, the 26th day of September, 1942, the following described real estate:

Situated in the Township of Perry, County of Richland, and State of Ohio, and being part of the north-west quarter of section thirty-six (36), township nineteen (19), range nineteen (19), bounded as follows: beginning at the south-west corner of said quarter section; thence east sixteen and 16/100 (16.16) chains; thence north fifteen and 50/100 (15.50) chains; thence west, parallel with the south quarter section line, sixteen and 16/100 (16.16) chains; thence south fifteen and 50/100 (15.50) chains to the place of beginning, containing twenty-five (25) acres of land more or less.

Said premises are appraised at seven hundred fifty ($750.00) dollars, and cannot be sold for less than two-thirds of that amount.

Terms of sale: CASH.

NELSON CAMPBELL,
Administrator of the estate of Ray M. Shaffer, deceased.

WORK

Work thou for pleasure; paint or sing or carve
The thing thou lovest, though the body starve.
Who works for glory misses oft the goal;
Who works for money coins his very soul.
Work for work's sake then, and it well may be
That these things shall be added unto thee.

'UNVANQUISHED' AVAILABLE AT CITY'S LIBRARY

Tells of Washington's New York Campaign In 1776; Other New Books.

The story of Washington's New York campaign in 1776, a hopeless struggle which saw Washington transformed into a military leader with dogged courage and a burning will to victory, is told in Howard Fast's new book, "The Unvanquished," now available at Mansfield Public Library.

Fast tells his story through the person of Washington himself and gives a memorable character portrayal of the great leader who, although smashed by defeat after defeat, maintained an unwavering devotion to cause and country.

FROM THIS DAY FORWARD by Elswyth Thane is a witty and enteriaining story about a marriage that had nothing but love to recommend it. She grew up in the glamorous world of the theater—he was the son of an Anglican clergyman and, when they met, he was a professor of zoology who did field-work on his holidays. He didn't want to marry Liz Dare, but he couldn't live without her—and though Liz was skeptical, too, she decided to go along when he left for Central America.

ATTACK ALARM by Hammond Innes is a gripping story of the R. A. F. during the summer of 1940. It all began the night Barry Hanson's battery brought down an enemy pilot whose alarming boast hinted at a strange Fifth Column plot. Yet Barry alone sensed from the captive's outburst that danger was to strike not in an isolated attack but as part of a swift, relentless onslaught to put all the Empire's fighter stations at the mercy of the Luftwaffe.

Other fiction:

THE PINK CAMELIA by Bailey; HAPPY EVER AFTER by Seymour; CENTER OF THE WEB by Roberts.

YEAR OF THE WILD BOAR by Helen Mears is a presentation of Japan and the Japanese people as they revealed themselves to a sensitive American mind. The strength of Miss Mears' book lies in the wealth of detail of custom and habit, superstition and mythology — material which has been neglected in modern books —and it forms a trenchant psychological portrayal of a race.

DAYS OF OFELIA by Gertrude Diamant is a book about Mexico that cuts through the surface and shows you the living people. Miss Diamant went to Mexico to give intelligence tests —but, from the moment she found herself lodging with a native family, she was the captive of ten-year-old Ofelia, her maid, guide, and magic key to Mexico. In the vividness with which her book conveys the flavor of Mexican life, and in the charm and humor with which it is written, it presents a thoroughly fascinating picture of "the people next door."

CITY LAWYER by Arthur Garfield Hays is the autobiography of a law practice that has taken the author from the Scopes trial in Tennessee to the Reichstag Fire trial in Germany—that has brought in a fee of more than half a million dollars for a single case—and a law practice in which the most important cases were those that brought in nothing at all. It is readable, colorful and entertaining.

THE SIXTH COLUMN, based on authentic reports and letters, is made up of articles written by outstanding representatives of each of the ten Nazi occupied countries. Among the writers are Jan Masaryk, Prince Jean of Luxembourg, Mme. Paderewski, and Genevieve Tabouis, and they tell of the secret warfare still being waged by the oppressed populations in an attempt to frustrate the conquerors.

Other non-fiction: "Artists Say the Silliest Things," by DuBois; "Power Rectifiers," by Rosslyn; "House Telephones," by Stuart; "Complete Guide to Soilless Gardening," by Gericke; "Short History of Canada for Americans," by Burt; "What the Citizen Should Know About Submarine Warfare," by Woodbury; "The Devil In France," by Feuchtwanger; "Chemical Formulary," Vol. V by Bennett; "Stedman's Shorter Medical Dictionary, the New Belief In the Common Man," by Friedrich.

Books For Children

(Available at Mansfield Public Library)

Older boys seeking adventure will find two new titles to their liking. One is a Boy Scout story by a favorite author and the other deals with aviation.

SOS . . . RADIO PATROL, by William Heyliger — A troop of scouts in search of a camping site became marooned on an island in a flood. The tense excitement of the adventure is emphasized by the courage and resourcefulness of the boys.

SKY FREIGHTER, by Howard M. Brier—Five years have elapsed in the life of Barry Martin since readers have known him in SKY-CRUISER. The subtitle of the new book reveals that this is a story of bush pilots who fly freight to the radium mines of Arctic Canada. The adventure begins when Barry is asked to deliver and demonstrate a Starwing S-29 at Edmontin, Canada. The assignment was to last six months. The account brings to the dramatic plot a glimpse of the growing importance of the Canadian Northwest.

SENDS MESSAGE

Lausche Broadcasts to People of Conquered Yugoslavia.

CLEVELAND — (AP) — Mayor Frank J. Lausche today broadcast a Labor day message of hope to the people of Yugoslavia—the land of his ancestors.

"My countrymen have recognized that your enemies are our enemies," the mayor said. "The first of a great American army of at least 10,000,000 men already is taking the field beside their allies throughout the world. And as they do so, a still greater army of workers—both men and women of America—is moving into place behind them."
